Arlington nurse tells of polio epidemic in North Carolina

Responded to call of national foundation

After four months at the Emergency Polio Hospital at Hickory, North Carolina, (Mrs. J. J.) Louise Hohmann, RN, has returned to her home on West Euclid ave., Arlington Heights. A description of the hospital and epidemic as related to us by Mrs. Hohmann follows:

"The hospital, located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, was established by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis early in June when the epidemic struck North Carolina. A former fresh air camp conducted by the National Youth Organization for underprivileged boys was speedily converted into the emergency hospital.

"The original building of two wings was turned into two twenty bed wards. Before one had an opportunity to think the forty beds were occupied. The epidemic became so serious that four tents, each housing about fifteen patients, were established. Citizens of Hickory, farmers from miles around, prisoners from the State Prison, or whomever could be pressed into service, worked day and night to set up the tents. In no time at all the tents were filled to capacity. Another building was then hastily begun and within forty-eight hours a fifty-two bed ward was so near completion that patients were admitted. Now there are two new buildings housing five convalescent halls for white patients, one hall for colored patients, doctor's offices, clinic and admission rooms and physio-therapy rooms with the latter containing the cloverleaf tubs in which the convalescent patients are submerged in hot water (100-105 degrees F) twice daily for fifteen minute periods as long as prescribed. The Red Cross sent nurses from seventeen states and at the peak of the epidemic 110 registered nurses were on duty. Dr. H. C. Whims, county health officer of three North Carolina counties, was medical director, assisted by Dr. Gaither Hahn and Dr. H. E. Henry and Major S. Craig of Winston Salem who was released on an extended furlough from the Army Medical Corps to assist at Emergency hospital as long as needed.

"Mrs. Katherine I. Matthews of St. Petersburg, Fla., former Illinois training school graduate, was chief nurse. The hospital census in August was approximately 225 patients and at no time has the census been less than 185.

"The equipment of the hospital included five Emerson Respirators, each valued at $1500.00. During the months of July and August 4 respirators were in continual use with the children in the respirators at that time now on the road to recovery.

"Out of 800 cases of infantile paralysis reported by the State of North Carolina up to November 1, 420 cases were treated at the emergency hospital at Hickory. 14 deaths occurred, of which four were adults.

"The Kenny Method of treatment is used when prescribed by the attending physician. During the period of acute spasm the patient is handled as little as possible. As soon as advisable, except in mild cases, five to seven weeks of intensive hot pack treatments are usually given.

"It is surprising to find these children so congenial and pleasant to work with after the intense pain most of them have suffered. One soon becomes very fond of these children and I found on my departure I had made many new friends.

"Each little patient has his own favorite doctor or nurses, usually those who are first assigned to the patient. As the child progresses, he or she is moved into the convalescent halls. On a tour of the hospital many cheery greetings are given to those who first cared for these unfortunate little victims.

"Admiration of the highest type should be given to the Physio-Theraphists whom I believe are doing a most mavelous piece of work in restoring these afflicted children to normalcy. The various exercises given by the Physio-Therapists in muscle re-education, seems simple to an onlooker, but after weeks or months of these treatments the results obtained seemed almost miraculous to me.

"When one has an opportunity to work with and observe the patient in the acute stage one feels repaid for the small part they may have had in starting this child back to a normal life.

"During my stay at the hospital it was my good fortune to observe and work with Dr. William T. Green, assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at the Harvard School of Medicine, also Miss Ruth Council, orthopedic consultant for the State of North Caroline. In company with Miss Council I attended numerous orthopedic clinics in North Carolina and observed some of North Carolina's finest orthopedists at work. The care given patients who attend these clinics seemed unexcelled.

"The hospital, started in haste, has taken on an atmosphere of a normal and well organized institution. It was an education and a pleasure to be associated with so many splendid people. I found the doctors and nurses and attendants untiring in their efforts to relieve any suffering or to do any small deed that may bring a bit of happiness to the patients. The cooperation and teamwork certainly denotes what can be accomplished in an emergency. I cannot speak too highly of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Patients are given the finest treatment and food available. If special food is required for the patients it is obtained if at all possible. Nourishment is given each patient every two hours or whenever requested.

"The hospital dining room, with Mrs. G. Townsend in charge, could compete with any well organized hospital in their daily menus. Many people of North Carolina contributed products of their farms and gardens to the hospital. Churches, clubs, business associations, etc., all gave generously of that which would make the patients confinement more pleasant. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis sought only the best for the recovery of the patients and also for the comfort of the staff answering their call.

"Unfortunately I did not have the opportunity I desired to work with Dr. Piszczek, Cook County health officers whom I believe was called to North Carolina at the outbreak of the epidemic. Dr. Piszczek had given lectures during his stay at the hospital to medical groups. His course of lectures were almost ended upon my arrival, however the few I attended were looked forward to with great enthusiasm."

"It was with deep regret I departed because my duties called me elsewhere and I was unable to remain in this friendly southern city a greater length of time.

"If one could see some of the sufferings of the victims of infantile paralysis they would realize the good of their contribution to the MARCH OF DIMES."

Dr. Piszczek directed Polio fight in N. Carolina epidemic

It was through the accompanying story obtained from Mrs. J. J. Hohmann, R. N., Arlington Heights, that Paddock Publications learned of the valiant work that was done by Cook County's own Dr. Piszczek and a member of his staff, Dr. Mildred Jackson in establishing the hospital at Hickory, North Carolina, to combat the polio epidemic in that part of the country.

Dr. Piszczek was called there by the U. S. government agencies because of the success that his office experienced in eradicating polio epidemic in Cook County a year ago. When he arrived on the scene there were a hundred patients. He took active charge of the organizing of the staff, spending most of his time instructing eastern doctors and nurses as to the methods of treatment that have proven the most successful in Cook county.

In response to a national call for scrap books for children ill with polio, Dr. Piszczek was surprised to find a reply from Arlington Heights Lutheran school.

Mrs. Hohmann served part of her time at Hickory as assistant chief nurse. She considers that she has had invaluable experience in polio work and will no doubt be called upon if there is a sudden outbreak of the disease in this area. Due to the present need for nurses, she may accept an appointment in the near future.

Waste paper pick-up Dec. 2

Saturday, December 2, has been set for the next waste paper pick-up as announced by Frank Havranek and Oral Cline, co-chairmen of the drive. The paper shortage is still acute and paper is still a critical material, they state.

THERE'S A STRING ATTACHED

This time the local committee is also providing the twine to tie the bundle. Householders are urged to watch for this string which will be delivered by the local Cubs and Scouts.

RAIN OR SHINE

Those in charge of the pick-up urge householders to expect them no matter what the weather and to get the paper on the curb early.

HELP A WORTHY CAUSE

Readers are urged to look in other parts of this issue of the Herald for information showing what their bundle of paper will do for the war effort. In addition, they should keep in mind that the proceeds from the sale of paper is divided between the local O. C. D. organization and the local Cub Pack and Scout Troops.

Book review, 'The Green Years' open to public

Chapter E. R. of P. E. O. are sponsoring a book review of Cronin's "The Green Years" by Mrs. George A. Fowler, Evanston, to be held at the Methodist church November 26, at 8 p. m. Several musical selections will be rendered by Mrs. M. L. Reis. Tickets are 55c and are available to the public.

Mr. Cronin's latest novel "The Green Years" is a warm and genuine piece of work. At the same time it is an impressive example of how material already well worn may still be wonderfully vitalized by a sincere treatment.

Many of the basic ingredients of "The Green Years" might be taken straight out of the stock of any experienced writer of popular fiction; some of the combinations are right off the sure-fire shelf. For this novel is, in a sense, nothing but the story of an orphan boy, befriended and understood only by the old man in the generally unsympathetic household, agonized in his adolescence, but achieving at last, by a surprising yet completely credible plot twist, all his ardent ambitions.

Stated that way, "The Green Years" is old stuff. But—and this is the very real accomplishment of Mr. Cronin's insight—these familiar ingredients are here lit, all the way through, by the intense and quiet glow of a fine, penetrant understanding, of people and of events; so that, recreated, the old situations become new and fresh and satisfying.

No hunters arrested in Arlington; they went to Mt. Prospect

There were no hunters taken before Arlington Heights judges during the pheasant season, but the Herald understands that several Arlington Heights people got into trouble in Mt. Prospect where they attempted to hunt within the corporate limits of that municipality. Chief Wittenberg says they could not understand why Mt. Prospect would not recognize the "good neighbor" policy.

Thanksgiving

REV. L. V. STEPHAN
Pastor St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights

Down through the centuries the Christian world has ever given thanks to Almighty God in the midst of unspeckable hardships. From time immemorial unto the present men have raised holy hands unto the Lord in heartfelt thanksgiving, even in the face of tears and want and woe! Father Abraham and great Moses taught the people thus even though sorrow filled their hearts! In the great temple of Solomon the faithful gathered to render thanks unto God with songs by the multitude and instruments of music, although war ravished their land and death stalked their path!

Listen to David as he sings "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised, in the firmament of His power, in the mountain of His holiness." From the catacombs at Rome in the early centuries from the bands of persecuted Christians in the forests of Europe, from the hiding places of the believers persecuted by the Spanish Inquisition one could hear amid the voice of pleading also the song of thanksgiving unto the Lord!

And the Christian heart is also grateful in 1944! In spite of the attendant evils of our time, in spite of war and bloodshed, wounds and death; in spite of our crying beneath the chastening rod, we lift up our hearts in gratitude also this year.

We Americans above all peoples on earth have reason to bring to our God the sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving. Our armies have not been defeated in battle. Our navies are the fearsome power of the seven seas. Our cities of wealth and beauty stand erect and imposing. Our homes are warm and inviting. We know no real want, and fear of the enemy is disappearing. Freedom is ours, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion.

Above all, we are more grateful than ever for Christ, grateful for divine grace, for "Christ hath abolished death and brought life and immortality to light"! Thanks be to God!

Palatine boy missing in Pacific action

MM 3-c Edward L. Weide, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weide, Palatine, is missing in action. His parents received a telegram from the navy department Saturday. They were asked not to reveal the ship on which he was serving.

A telegram received from the parents of a buddy serving on the same ship stated that their son was injured. It is presumed that their ship was engaged in the recent action with the Jap navy.

Petty Officer Weide's absentee ballot in the recent election arrived and was counted by the election officials two weeks ago. The last letter received from him by his parents was dated October 9.

He would have been in service 2 years the 8th of December. He received his boot training at Farragut, Idaho, later attending school in North Dakota, where he earned the rating of machinist mate. On March 8th he reported for sea duty at Norfolk, Va.

Weide's family, besides his parents, comprise a brother Marvin and a sister Leona.

Palatine police recover stolen car on a hunch

Palatine police department was able to return a stolen car to its owner and turn a local young man over to the custody of Chicago police this week because Officer Oscar Weide and Orville Helms had a hunch that a 1942 Buick was too good a car for a certain local resident to be driving. They reported the license number to the Chicago police department and were advised that the car had disappeared from a Madison street parking lot a few hours earlier.

The man who drove the car to Palatine stated that the theft was easy. He walked onto a parking lot, picked out the best appearing car and as he drove out the lot waved a "thank you" to the attendant, who replied, "come again".

6th war loan quota is $100,000 for individuals

If Arlington Heights is to meet a quota of $100,000 for the 6th War Loan Drive, the job must be done by individual citizens. All purchases by corporations are barred and only individual purchases count. When Paul E. Miller, director of the 6th War Loan drive in Arlington received word that the quota was only $100,000, which is less than a third of the last war bond quota, he was all smiles, but, as he said, "I did not realize how many bonds in the previous drives were purchased by corporations and others who invested in series other than Class E, F and G."

Mr. Miller is still smiling, so are his district chairmen, but they realize there will have to be a lot of individual work as it will take a lot of salesmanship on the part of workers to sell the number of small bonds that will make that quota.

"Of course," Mr. Miller says, "it is the Christmas season and my wife tells me that Christmas gifts are mighty hard to find this year, but that is where the small war bonds are a godsend. Those who make war bonds their Christmas gifts will be spreading good cheer to the recipient and helping the war effort."

The work of selling those bonds will be done by a small army of Victory Volunteers. The suggestion has been made that it would not be a bad idea to have them wear Santa Claus outfits, but some of the workers claimed they could not do a good salesman job with whiskers on their chins.

Anyway, the 6th War Bond Drive is on. Those who are not contacted can get quick deliveries by phoning any of the respective chairmen. Here they are:

Director for the entire town, Paul E. Miller, 230 S. Walnut.

Mrs. Inez Day, co-chairman.

District Chairmen

Business Men's Committee, Mr. A. H. Franzen, Arlington Heights National Bank.

Southwest Area, to be announced.

Northwest Area, Arlington Heights, Mr. O. R. Cline, 828 N. Mitchell ave.

Asks Xmas mailing in November

Public response to the Post Office Department's "Shop Now! Mail In November" campaign is good but needs to be better, according to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker.

"Extraordinary wartime conditions face us," Mr. Walker said. "Unless more people buy and mail this month the Postal service cannot do its job of delivering all Christmas gifts on time.

"It is not pleasing to us to have to ask the American people to mail packages so far in advance of the delivery date. We do so only because it has to be done. The job is a tremendous one, but we are confident that it will be done because we know from experience that given sound reasons Americans cooperate magnificently.

"Unprecedented shortages of man power and transportation facilities growing out of the war compel early mailing. The Postal Service has given 50,000 experienced employees to the armed forces and 300,000 railroad workers have gone to war. Equally serious is the fact that rail and other transport facilities are taxed to the limit with the great burden of war traffic which all of us know must take precedence.

"In a great number of our 43,000 post offices the man power situation is critical. The 200,000 extra workers whom we normally recruited to handle the swollen Christmas volume of mail were able to work long hours of overtime and to do heavy work. This cannot be expected from the women and high school boys and girls to whom in large part we must look this year to meet the situation.

"The way in which everyone responded in making it possible for us to handle a volume of 70,000,000 parcels for the armed forces overseas leaves no doubt in my mind that the November Christmas mailing will be equally successful. I ask for the help of the press, radio, business advertisers, civic groups and all Americans in making it possible for the Postal Service to do its work.

"We urge everyone to buy now, mail in November and mark gifts 'Do Not Open Until Christmas'."

YOUR PATRIOTIC NEIGHBOR

BE READY TO WELCOME HIM!

As this is written, no one can tell whether our war in Europe will be won and ended this year. One thing we do know certainly: the cost of it will not end with Germany's surrender.

In the Pacific we can be sure that the road to Tokyo will prove long and arduous; we cannot reckon its cost in lives and dollars but we are certain it will not be cheap.

We are still faced with the task of raising huge sums to prosecute our war relentlessly wherever on the globe an enemy remains with a gun in his hands.

This is a time for grim realism and unflagging zeal. . . . We have not yet won. Stand to your guns! Our fighting men will never fail us; you on the War Bond front will not fail them.

Victory will be ours; let us hasten the day.

Dr. Piszczek was called there by the U. S. government agencies because of the success that his office experienced in eradicating polio epidemic in Cook County a year ago. When he arrived on the scene there were a hundred patients. He took active charge of the organizing of the staff, spending most of his time instructing eastern doctors and nurses as to the methods of treatment that have proven the most successful in Cook county.

In response to a national call for scrap books for children ill with polio, Dr. Piszczek was surprised to find a reply from Arlington Heights Lutheran school.

Mrs. Hohmann served part of her time at Hickory as assistant chief nurse. She considers that she has had invaluable experience in polio work and will no doubt be called upon if there is a sudden outbreak of the disease in this area. Due to the present need for nurses, she may accept an appointment in the near future.

Waste paper pick-up Dec. 2

Saturday, December 2, has been set for the next waste paper pick-up as announced by Frank Havranek and Oral Cline, co-chairmen of the drive. The paper shortage is still acute and paper is still a critical material, they state.

THERE'S A STRING ATTACHED

This time the local committee is also providing the twine to tie the bundle. Householders are urged to watch for this string which will be delivered by the local Cubs and Scouts.

RAIN OR SHINE

Those in charge of the pick-up urge householders to expect them no matter what the weather and to get the paper on the curb early.

HELP A WORTHY CAUSE

Readers are urged to look in other parts of this issue of the Herald for information showing what their bundle of paper will do for the war effort. In addition, they should keep in mind that the proceeds from the sale of paper is divided between the local O. C. D. organization and the local Cub Pack and Scout Troops.

Book review, 'The Green Years' open to public

Chapter E. R. of P. E. O. are sponsoring a book review of Cronin's "The Green Years" by Mrs. George A. Fowler, Evanston, to be held at the Methodist church November 26, at 8 p. m. Several musical selections will be rendered by Mrs. M. L. Reis. Tickets are 55c and are available to the public.

Mr. Cronin's latest novel "The Green Years" is a warm and genuine piece of work. At the same time it is an impressive example of how material already well worn may still be wonderfully vitalized by a sincere treatment.

Many of the basic ingredients of "The Green Years" might be taken straight out of the stock of any experienced writer of popular fiction; some of the combinations are right off the sure-fire shelf. For this novel is, in a sense, nothing but the story of an orphan boy, befriended and understood only by the old man in the generally unsympathetic household, agonized in his adolescence, but achieving at last, by a surprising yet completely credible plot twist, all his ardent ambitions.

Stated that way, "The Green Years" is old stuff. But—and this is the very real accomplishment of Mr. Cronin's insight—these familiar ingredients are here lit, all the way through, by the intense and quiet glow of a fine, penetrant understanding, of people and of events; so that, recreated, the old situations become new and fresh and satisfying.

No hunters arrested in Arlington; they went to Mt. Prospect

There were no hunters taken before Arlington Heights judges during the pheasant season, but the Herald understands that several Arlington Heights people got into trouble in Mt. Prospect where they attempted to hunt within the corporate limits of that municipality. Chief Wittenberg says they could not understand why Mt. Prospect would not recognize the "good neighbor" policy.

Thanksgiving

REV. L. V. STEPHAN
Pastor St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights

Down through the centuries the Christian world has ever given thanks to Almighty God in the midst of unspeakable hardships. From time immemorial unto the present men have raised holy hands unto the Lord in heartfelt thanksgiving, even in the face of tears and want and woe! Father Abraham and great Moses taught the people thus even though sorrow filled their hearts! In the great temple of Solomon the faithful gathered to render thanks unto God with songs by the multitude and instruments of music, although war ravished their land and death stalked their path!

Listen to David as he sings "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised, in the firmament of His power, in the mountain of His holiness." From the catacombs at Rome in the early centuries from the bands of persecuted Christians in the forests of Europe, from the hiding places of the believers persecuted by the Spanish Inquisition one could hear amid the voice of pleading also the song of thanksgiving unto the Lord!

And the Christian heart is also grateful in 1944! In spite of the attendant evils of our time, in spite of war and bloodshed, wounds and death; in spite of our crying beneath the chastening rod, we lift up our hearts in gratitude also this year.

We Americans above all peoples on earth have reason to bring to our God the sacrifices of praise and thanksgiving. Our armies have not been defeated in battle. Our navies are the fearsome power of the seven seas. Our cities of wealth and beauty stand erect and imposing. Our homes are warm and inviting. We know no real want, and fear of the enemy is disappearing. Freedom is ours, freedom of speech, and freedom of religion.

Above all, we are more grateful than ever for Christ, grateful for divine grace, for "Christ hath abolished death and brought life and immortality to light"! Thanks be to God!

Palatine boy missing in Pacific action

MM 3-c Edward L. Weide, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weide, Palatine, is missing in action. His parents received a telegram from the navy department Saturday. They were asked not to reveal the ship on which he was serving.

A telegram received from the parents of a buddy serving on the same ship stated that their son was injured. It is presumed that their ship was engaged in the recent action with the Jap navy.

Petty Officer Weide's absentee ballot in the recent election arrived and was counted by the election officials two weeks ago. The last letter received from him by his parents was dated October 9.

He would have been in service 2 years the 8th of December. He received his boot training at Farragut, Idaho, later attending school in North Dakota, where he earned the rating of machinist mate. On March 8th he reported for sea duty at Norfolk, Va.

Weide's family, besides his parents, comprise a brother Marvin and a sister Leona.

Palatine police recover stolen car on a hunch

Palatine police department was able to return a stolen car to its owner and turn a local young man over to the custody of Chicago police this week because Officer Oscar Weide and Orville Helms had a hunch that a 1942 Buick was too good a car for a certain local resident to be driving. They reported the license number to the Chicago police department and were advised that the car had disappeared from a Madison street parking lot a few hours earlier.

The man who drove the car to Palatine stated that the theft was easy. He walked onto a parking lot, picked out the best appearing car and as he drove out the lot waved a "thank you" to the attendant, who replied, "come again".

6th war loan quota is $100,000 for individuals

If Arlington Heights is to meet a quota of $100,000 for the 6th War Loan Drive, the job must be done by individual citizens. All purchases by corporations are barred and only individual purchases count. When Paul E. Miller, director of the 6th War Loan drive in Arlington received word that the quota was only $100,000, which is less than a third of the last war bond quota, he was all smiles, but, as he said, "I did not realize how many bonds in the previous drives were purchased by corporations and others who invested in series other than Class E, F and G."

Mr. Miller is still smiling, so are his district chairmen, but they realize there will have to be a lot of individual work as it will take a lot of salesmanship on the part of workers to sell the number of small bonds that will make that quota.

"Of course," Mr. Miller says, "it is the Christmas season and my wife tells me that Christmas gifts are mighty hard to find this year, but that is where the small war bonds are a godsend. Those who make war bonds their Christmas gifts will be spreading good cheer to the recipient and helping the war effort."

The work of selling those bonds will be done by a small army of Victory Volunteers. The suggestion has been made that it would not be a bad idea to have them wear Santa Claus outfits, but some of the workers claimed they could not do a good salesman job with whiskers on their chins.

Anyway, the 6th War Bond Drive is on. Those who are not contacted can get quick deliveries by phoning any of the respective chairmen. Here they are:

Director for the entire town, Paul E. Miller, 230 S. Walnut.

Mrs. Inez Day, co-chairman.

District Chairmen

Business Men's Committee, Mr. A. H. Franzen, Arlington Heights National Bank.

Southwest Area, to be announced.

Asks Xmas mailing in November

Public response to the Post Office Department's "Shop Now! Mail In November" campaign is good but needs to be better, according to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker.

"Extraordinary wartime conditions face us," Mr. Walker said. "Unless more people buy and mail this month the Postal service cannot do its job of delivering all Christmas gifts on time.

"It is not pleasing to us to have to ask the American people to mail packages so far in advance of the delivery date. We do so only because it has to be done. The job is a tremendous one, but we are confident that it will be done because we know from experience that given sound reasons Americans cooperate magnificently.

"Unprecedented shortages of man power and transportation facilities growing out of the war compel early mailing. The Postal Service has given 50,000 experienced employees to the armed forces and 300,000 railroad workers have gone to war. Equally serious is the fact that rail and other transport facilities are taxed to the limit with the great burden of war traffic which all of us know must take precedence.

"In a great number of our 43,000 post offices the man power situation is critical. The 200,000 extra workers whom we normally recruited to handle the swollen Christmas volume of mail were able to work long hours of overtime and to do heavy work. This cannot be expected from the women and high school boys and girls to whom in large part we must look this year to meet the situation.

"The way in which everyone responded in making it possible for us to handle a volume of 70,000,000 parcels for the armed forces overseas leaves no doubt in my mind that the November Christmas mailing will be equally successful. I ask for the help of the press, radio, business advertisers, civic groups and all Americans in making it possible for the Postal Service to do its work.

"We urge everyone to buy now, mail in November and mark gifts 'Do Not Open Until Christmas'."

YOUR PATRIOTIC NEIGHBOR

BE READY TO WELCOME HIM!

As this is written, no one can tell whether our war in Europe will be won and ended this year. One thing we do know certainly: the cost of it will not end with Germany's surrender.

In the Pacific we can be sure that the road to Tokyo will prove long and arduous; we cannot reckon its cost in lives and dollars but we are certain it will not be cheap.

We are still faced with the task of raising huge sums to prosecute our war relentlessly wherever on the globe an enemy remains with a gun in his hands.

This is a time for grim realism and unflagging zeal. . . . We have not yet won. Stand to your guns! Our fighting men will never fail us; you on the War Bond front will not fail them.

Victory will be ours; let us hasten the day.

When a doctor suggests vitamins

by C. W. LUSSMAN of Sieburg Pharmacy

It is only after the most careful consideration of your individual needs that a doctor recommends Vitamins. To casually suggest that you purchase vitamins and add them to your daily regimen of living is not the doctor's way.

First he carefully diagnoses your specific symptoms, notes your needs and only after he thoroughly understands your case, does he prescribe.

Even then, he mentions what vitamins, in what proportion and how often they should be taken.

He will do even more. He will advise and prescribe Vitamins that have been produced by a standard pharmaceutical house. Anything less than this careful diagnosis and advice might prove a waste of your money.

Leyden 4-H boy state victory garden winner

Chester Kolze, a member of the Leyden 4-H Club, has been named one of the eight 4-H club members in the state of Illinois to receive a 25 war bond in the National Victory Garden Contest for his outstanding work in producing food for commercial and home consumption, according to Charles N. Glover, assistant farm adviser.

Chester has been active in other 4-H club activities besides his actual project work, having also been named state outstanding club member as well as state project honor member with his victory service project.

Named as winner to represent the state for competition for national award was Rose Marie Brankey, Will County.

The victory garden contest was begun in 1942 to encourage 4-H members to acquire knowledge and develop skills essential to the care and management of a well-planned garden, to produce increased amounts of essential vegetables and fruits and to understand their nutritional importance.

Other goals were to contribute to family and national welfare by reducing the amount of food purchased to help supply the family with vegetables throughout the year and to learn to market garden produce in an economical and approved manner.

Wool Fibers

Wool is one of the best natural fibers ever used by mankind. Wool is also the one fiber which until recently the research laboratories have never been able to duplicate satisfactorily despite a large expenditure of time, effort and money. Like other animal hair fibers, wool has a protein base as opposed to the cellulose base of cotton or rayon. These two facts help explain why research during recent years to produce a man-made fiber similar to wool has been directed in considerable measure toward the possibilities of using animal or vegetable proteins.

Chas. F. Kosman, who has been an Arlington Heights business man 32 years, died at the Palatine Community Hospital Saturday afternoon. He sustained a stroke at his home the previous Saturday. His right side was paralyzed and he lost his speech. Mr. Kosmin had been in fair health.

IN MEMORIAM

Edward J. Scharringhausen

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago November 22, 1943.

Sweet are the memories that never fade
Of one we loved, but could not save;
Sincere and kind in his heart and mind,
What a wonderful memory he left behind.

Buy bonds till it hurts!

Go without and do without if need be to help speed the pace of victory

THE young man in this picture obviously is an extreme example. Our Government certainly does not expect any of us to go that far in restricting our buying—even to put the 6th War Loan over the top.

But our fighting forces certainly will feel that their sacrifices are appreciated if we deny ourselves some things and put the money into extra War Bonds instead.

Remember, War Bonds pay off at maturity at the rate of $4 for every $3 invested. Try to buy at least one extra $100 Bond while this 6th War Loan Drive is on.

When a doctor suggests vitamins

by C. W. LUSSMAN of Sieburg Pharmacy

It is only after the most careful consideration of your individual needs that a doctor recommends Vitamins. To casually suggest that you purchase vitamins and add them to your daily regimen of living is not the doctor's way.

First he carefully diagnoses your specific symptoms, notes your needs and only after he thoroughly understands your case, does he prescribe.

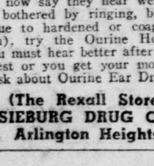

Even then, he mentions what vitamins, in what proportion and how often they should be taken.

He will do even more. He will advise and prescribe Vitamins that have been produced by a standard pharmaceutical house. Anything less than this careful diagnosis and advice might prove a waste of your money.

Leyden 4-H boy state victory garden winner

Chester Kolze, a member of the Leyden 4-H Club, has been named one of the eight 4-H club members in the state of Illinois to receive a 25 war bond in the National Victory Garden Contest for his outstanding work in producing food for commercial and home consumption, according to Charles N. Glover, assistant farm adviser.

Chester has been active in other 4-H club activities besides his actual project work, having also been named state outstanding club member as well as state project honor member with his victory service project.

Named as winner to represent the state for competition for national award was Rose Marie Brankey, Will County.

The victory garden contest was begun in 1942 to encourage 4-H members to acquire knowledge and develop skills essential to the care and management of a well-planned garden, to produce increased amounts of essential vegetables and fruits and to understand their nutritional importance.

Other goals were to contribute to family and national welfare by reducing the amount of food purchased to help supply the family with vegetables throughout the year and to learn to market garden produce in an economical and approved manner.

Wool Fibers

Wool is one of the best natural fibers ever used by mankind. Wool is also the one fiber which until recently the research laboratories have never been able to duplicate satisfactorily despite a large expenditure of time, effort and money. Like other animal hair fibers, wool has a protein base as opposed to the cellulose base of cotton or rayon These two facts help explain why research during recent years to produce a man-made fiber similar to wool has been directed in considerable measure toward the possibilities of using animal or vegetable proteins.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul and Body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 19.

The Golden Text was, "My soul lengeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God" (Ps. 84: 2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would. . . . If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit" (Gal. 5: 16, 17, 25).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The senses of Spirit abide in Love, and they demonstrate Truth and Life. . . . When what we erroneously term the five physical senses are misdirected, they are simply the manifested beliefs of mortal mind, which affirm that life, substance, and intelligence are material, instead of spiritual. These false beliefs and their products constitute the flesh, and the flesh wars against Spirit. . . . The five material senses testify to truth and error as united in a mind both good and evil. Their false evidence will finally yield to Truth,—to the recognition of Spirit and of the spiritual creation" (pp. 274, 287).

Christian Science church to have special service

"Thanksgiving" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Thursday, November 23.

The Golden Text will be: "Thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place" (II Cor. 2: 14).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will be the following from the Bible: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing . . . Enter into his gates with Thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name . . . My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up" (Ps. 100; 1, 2 4; Ps. 5: 3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is not moved by the breath of praise to do more than He has already done, nor can the infinite do less than bestow all good, since He is unchanging wisdom and Love . . . Prayer cannot change the Science of being, but it tends to bring us into harmony with it . . . If we are ungrateful for Life, Truth and Love, and yet return thanks to God for all blessings, we are insincere and incur the sharp censure our Master pronounces on hypocrites. In such a case, the only acceptable prayer is to put the finger on the lips and remember our blessings" (S. & H pp. 2, 3).

6 major advantages for industry in this area...

Northern Illinois has always been a foremost industrial area . . . in peace as well as wartime. Yes, a region where industries find it to their advantage to locate. Because here, rail, truck, water and air traffic converge. Here, within a radius of a few hundred miles, is the marketing and distributing center for nearly one-half the nation's population.

In this area, manufacturers have easy access to basic metals and raw material. Here is one of the world's leading financial centers. Here, too, are electric power plants of vast capacity to serve industries and farms as well as commercial establishments and homes.

Indeed, Northern Illinois is a great region today . . . and will be even greater tomorrow. Its favorable combination of economic factors makes it a region where established industries and new enterprises can thrive in the post-war period.

Christian Science church to have special service

"Thanksgiving" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Thursday, November 23.

The Golden Text will be: "Thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place" (II Cor. 2: 14).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will be the following from the Bible: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing . . . Enter into his gates with Thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name . . . My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up" (Ps. 100; 1, 2 4; Ps. 5: 3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is not moved by the breath of praise to do more than He has already done, nor can the infinite do less than bestow all good, since He is unchanging wisdom and Love . . . Prayer cannot change the Science of being, but it tends to bring us into harmony with it . . . If we are ungrateful for Life, Truth and Love, and yet return thanks to God for all blessings, we are insincere and incur the sharp censure our Master pronounces on hypocrites. In such a case, the only acceptable prayer is to put the finger on the lips and remember our blessings" (S. & H pp. 2, 3).

6 major advantages for industry in this area...

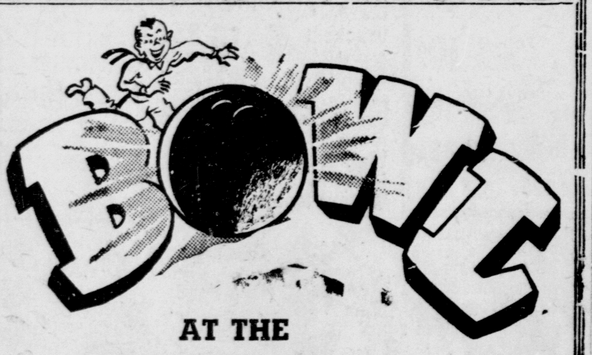

Northern Illinois has always been a foremost industrial area . . . in peace as well as wartime. Yes, a region where industries find it to their advantage to locate. Because here, rail, truck, water and air traffic converge. Here, within a radius of a few hundred miles, is the marketing and distributing center for nearly one-half the nation's population.

In this area, manufacturers have easy access to basic metals and raw material. Here is one of the world's leading financial centers. Here, too, are electric power plants of vast capacity to serve industries and farms as well as commercial establishments and homes.

Indeed, Northern Illinois is a great region today . . . and will be even greater tomorrow. Its favorable combination of economic factors makes it a region where established industries and new enterprises can thrive in the post-war period.

P.T.A. book fair to be given next week Friday

If you do not have one of the 35 cent tickets to the PTA Book Fair which is being held in the North School auditorium on Friday, December 1, at 8 p. m., you may get one at the door. Advance orders for books are not being taken this year, but there will be adequate supply of pre-school, grade and high school books on sale at the Fair before and after the short musical program and the "Resume of Children's Books" to be given by Mrs. Allen Ackley of Mt. Prospect.

A letter issued to parents by Superintendent R. E. Clabaugh last week says in part:

"In 1942 Mrs. N. K. Barr, as chairman of Arlington Heights Ways and Means Committee, introduced to our community 'The Book Fair.' Because it is a project furthering objectives in PTA work, because it has been enthusiastically received in the community, and because it has netted sufficient profit to meet the requirements of the budget, the PTA Board is again sponsoring the Arlington Heights Book Fair.

"As has been previously stressed, PTA is not a money-making organization and each year it is necessary for the Ways and Means Committee to present a money-making project to meet the annual expenditures. This year, the budget is larger than usual, which means a greater need for your cooperation and support of this program."

Refreshments will be served at the close of the program.

Mrs. H. E. Johnson is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee this year and is working with Mrs. Robert Beatty, Hospitality Chairman, Mrs. Marvin Prellberg, who is in charge of arrangements, Mrs. Robert Evans, ticket chairman, and Mrs. Harold Collard, Music and Art Chairman.

Publishers' representatives are Miss Swail and Miss Flaherty. Miss Flaherty will talk on books to the upper grades on Friday.

Prepare for Salvage

Prospective fortunes to be made from raising sunken vessels are already prompting salvage companies to make preparations. Lying all around the coast of the United Kingdom are ships which can yield enormous sums from scrap metal and cargoes. Some are easily accessible. According to reports, a Swedish concern has outfitted a large ice-breaker to salvage submarines.

Lying all around the coast of the United Kingdom are ships which can yield enormous sums from scrap metal and cargoes. Some are easily accessible. According to reports, a Swedish concern has outfitted a large ice-breaker to salvage submarines.

Where they will spend Thanksgiving

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hammerl and family will be guests of his parents in Des Plaines Thanksgiving Day.

Many homes to omit Thanksgiving festivities

There are many Arlington Heights homes at which the usual Thanksgiving festivities will not put in an appearance this year and it is not because of any dearth of turkeys or other fowls. Our inquiring reporter learned this week that with family circles broken this year because of boys and girls in the service of their country, many of those left at home have not the heart to feast and be merry. There is a more serious vein this year and the thankfulness of many a home will not be expressed by big eats.

Thanksgiving prayers for the speedy return of those in service is the foremost thought everywhere this year. If the war is over by next Thanksgiving there will be a celebration big enough to make up for any lack of enthusiasm this year.

However the arrival of Thanksgiving this year will mean many family gatherings, reports of which will be eagerly awaited by the members of families that are in foreign lands.

If you're a parent or a lover of children, you can settle some of your gift problems at the P. T. A. Book Fair on December first. The ingenious children's books of today and the inspired new editions of old favorites can not help but leave their ladders toward beauty and knowledge in the minds of those who will need to reach high in coming years.

Half the people I questioned before the Herald came out last week didn't know that THIS Thursday is Thanksgiving. All I could think of was—my family won't eat chicken and we're out of meat points. Somehow omelette has no appeal as a substitute for the turkey we didn't order.

Really though, if we have to, we'll eat our omelette with real thanksgiving . . . Grandad Milstead has been to Mayos and may not need that operation.

Mary McArdle, if you have a minute, write me a note. I want to know, first-hand how that oil painting came out. Gladys thinks you did remarkably well.

I am suffering from an active case of triple chagrin. After telling every one I knew to be sure to see the Burkhart exhibit at the Antique Show I find that the Burkharts are not the Chamberlains and the Chamberlain booth is the one I meant. Do you see? This apology is involved. I was sharply set right by the younger Mr. Chamberlain Thursday. I liked the Pennsylvania dealers tremendously though the son's lack of discrimination in talking to antiquers is occasionally distressing. The Burkharts are Pennsylvanians and their antiques are rare ones too, but I don't know them. Oh, dear, how did I ever get in such a muddle?

Hazel Turner has sent me a little poem written by a former high school class mate of hers, Theodoris James:

A MONKEY

I found him in an antique shop
A musty, earthy place.
His sly old smile and blinky eyes
Just matched his silly face.
Although I brought him home with me
And put him on the shelf
I took him back because, they said
He looked just like myself.
How about the one you thought you might send in, Mrs. McCoy?

Big Ken brought back a story from Washington about a Scotchman who boarded a train, and scrooching down in his seat with a large suitcase, declined to pay his fare.

"I already paid it," he claimed.

"You couldn't have. I haven't collected any fares," remonstrated the conductor.

"But I paid it," insisted the Scotchman.

There followed more argument, quickly becoming heated. Finally the conductor in a towering rage seized the Scotchman's suitcase and as they were going over a bridge, pitched it out the window and into the river below.

"There!" he smouldered.

The vanquished passenger looked up, tears coursing down his cheeks. "It isn't enough," sobbed he, "that you try to make me pay two fares. Now, you've drowned my little boy."

Many homes to omit Thanksgiving festivities

There are many Arlington Heights homes at which the usual Thanksgiving festivities will not put in an appearance this year and it is not because of any dearth of turkeys or other fowls. Our inquiring reporter learned this week that with family circles broken this year because of boys and girls in the service of their country, many of those left at home have not the heart to feast and be merry. There is a more serious vein this year and the thankfulness of many a home will not be expressed by big eats.

Thanksgiving prayers for the speedy return of those in service is the foremost thought everywhere this year. If the war is over by next Thanksgiving there will be a celebration big enough to make up for any lack of enthusiasm this year.

However the arrival of Thanksgiving this year will mean many family gatherings, reports of which will be eagerly awaited by the members of families that are in foreign lands.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Runge were hosts to about 45 guests at a surprise party Wednesday evening in honor of the anniversary of their parents. The evening was spent playing cards, after which a midnight luncheon was served. A short talk given by the Reverand Kamphenkel was enjoyed.

New tires

The November quota of new automobile tires allocated by the War Production Board will be 1,850,000 or 250,000 more than in October. "As near as we can tell, this quota should satisfy normal November replacement needs of eligible 'B' and 'C' ration holders," Max McCullough, Deputy OPA Rationing Administrator said. He pointed out that the ration quota this month makes it "clear that recapping will still be necessary for most motorists if they are to keep their cars in operation." Unfilled "B" and "C" tire applications, needed increases in dealer inventories and a higher production rate are required before "A" ration holders can expect new tires.

Red tape

Two million postwar jobs could be supplied in the field of distribution if each employer in the service trades would hire one more employee, says Eric Johnson, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. . . . Latin America is seen as market for $10 billion worth of new and used industrial equipment in the first ten postwar years. . . . Johns-Manville corporation reports that it filed with government agencies 71,588 reports and questionnaires last year, or about one report every two minutes during every regular business hour of the year.

Offer 973 U.S. factories for sale or lease

For sale or lease: 973 government-owned factories and factory sites in 41 states.

As a starter in reckoning with this aspect of the surplus disposal problem, the Defense Plant corporation has mailed to all banks and chambers of commerce a pamphlet describing details of these properties. They range in size from a 300-square foot factory site to a plant covering 5,146,800 square feet.

Opinion in business circles is that there will be plenty of takers for the smaller factories because of the deep-rooted urge of the average American to go into business for himself. The larger plants may have to be partitioned into smaller units capable of housing several manufacturers under one roof.

The current demand for businesses, although mostly in the retailing field, is somewhat encouraging to the government's chances of moving these properties, when they are no longer needed for war production. One business broker reports he has clients ready to buy several hundred machine shops. On the other hand, he believes he could sell twice as many taverns, if available. Another broker says inquiries are growing for bowling alleys, delicatessens, groceries, meat markets, drugstores and garages, filling stations and neighborhood variety stores. Many women workers in war plants who hope to gain a postwar livelihood in shops of their own, today are studying at schools of dress designing and beauty culture.

Diapers

Though hardly a dozen years old, the business of supplying diapers to homes with babies has become an important commercial undertaking. Its success is typical of the opportunities offered in this country to individuals who have good ideas and are willing to work hard. Sales of diaper service companies, now established in most fair-sized communities, are approximately $12,000,000 a year, according to estimates of Business Week magazine. Diaper customers number a quarter of a million, and at that, a lot of people are not being served because the companies can't get materials for more diapers.

Those in the trade say that the business was started in the early 30's by two boys just out of college. They launched their idea in a small way, washing diapers for neighbors in the cellars of their own homes. When enough profits had been saved, they bought a truck, which enabled them to widen the territory covered. Eventually they had enough profits saved to rent a laundry. Today the company they founded in this slow and painstaking way is one of the leaders in the field.

Tobacco

Primest cheese prices at all levels of distribution will be three cents a pound higher as a result of OPA action to relieve hardship suffered by manufacturers under the previous price ceiling.

Ceiling prices of plug chewing tobacco have been increased by 20 per cent at all sales levels as a step to help manufacturers overcome the increased cost burden under which they operate.

Leather-soled moccasins with a house-slipper type of construction will continue to be stocked by stores as ration-free footwear through December 31. After that date this type of footwear will be classified as rationed.

Buyers of coal and other solid fuels are entitled to receive from their dealer an invoice, sales slip or receipt that contains full information about the kind of coal sold to them and the price paid. This is required of dealers by an OPA provision effective November 11.

Future cars

For several years now many automobile manufacturers have been telling the American public that they will resume production with an automobile that is basically the 1942 model. But this week it developed that at least one automobile company is planning a new car from the ground up. Upsetting the industry's applecart was Joseph W. Frazer, new chairman of Graham-Paige Motors corporation, who announced that his company will build an automobile which will depart from the conventional design and utilize plastics, light-metals and other recent developments.

"We may not have the first car on the market in the postwar period," said Frazer, "but we do plan to have the first real postwar automobile. The prospective design for our new model is crystallizing and we expect to be as modern as tomorrow. Our immediate objective is not to build a 'used car.'"

Matches

Hold that light, mister, will continue to be the popular phrase in coming months, according to a War Production Board report which states that about 90 per cent of all penny box matches and 25 per cent of all book matches produced in the next six months will be delivered to the armed forces. Although few penny box matches will be available to civilians during this period, matches of the household "strike anywhere" type will be produced in sufficient quantity to meet all civilian needs.

New bikes

THINGS TO COME—Folding bicycles, which can be collapsed into the size of one wheel for easy carrying or compact shipment. . . . A machine for grading peas, beans and other vegetables, according to differences in their specific gravities, thus eliminating necessity for handling or sifting. . . . Phosphorescent cases for flashlights to make them easy to locate in the dark.

Shop death

Encouraging results are being obtained in the home front fight against on-the-job fatalties among the nation's gigantic production force of 50½ million workers. Experience so far this year indicates that the industrial fatality record in 1944 may drop as much as 8 per cent below last year's level of 18,000 deaths.

For a party where a girl must "show her colors", Alyn Wayne, stylist of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, designs an up-to-the-minute chapeau with a center of crimson carnations, a circlet of white baby chrysanthemums and an edging of blue cornflowers. Quite practical and will outlast any party.

This Week in Wheeling

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willis of Rossville, Ill., were guests at the Merle Willis home this week.

The Ladies Pinochle club met with Mrs. Edward Wesolek on Wednesday evening, Nov. 15. First prize was won by Mrs. Albert Schultz, while the consolation prize fell to Mrs. Charles Becker.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anfeldt on Sunday, Nov. 12. Baby Stella Louise is the Anfeldt's thirteenth child, twelve of whom are living.

The eighteen girls who were present at their regular girl scout meeting last Friday night enjoyed a treat of ice cream and cake in honor of Patsy Saunder's tenth birthday. Patsy is one of the new members of the troop who is anticipating her first investiture at the troop's coming court of awards.

Mrs. James Bailey returned home from her trip to California last Saturday morning.

Mrs. Glenn Schmidt entertained her bunco Club last Tuesday, Nov. 14. Prize winners were Bernice Day, first prize, Lucille Cokenower, second, and Minnie Wolf the consolation.

Members of Wheeling Camp Royal Neighbors adjourned to the home of Neighbor Lydia Blum after their last meeting where they enjoyed a delicious luncheon.

The regular meeting of Wheeling School PTA will be held next Monday evening, November 27. All parents and friends of school children are urged to attend.

Thanksgiving day will be happier for the Robert Scott family with daddy at home. Mr. Scott has been hospitalized for ten weeks following an accident at the Waukegan Public Service plant where a coal car crushed his foot. He is at home for several weeks but will have to return to the hospital for another skin graft and hopes to be able to be home permanently soon after that.

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Quigley spent a few days of last week with relatives in, Indianapolis.

New phones

Explaining why it's difficult to have a new telephone installed, Western Electric company reports that one battleship needs as many telephones as a city of 10,000. . . . A recent survey by National Cash Register company disclosed that four out of every five cash registers in use are more than ten years old, and one out of every three has been in service over 20 years.

Iron Beauty

Iron beauty into those table pieces. Fold cotton and linen cloths selvage to selvage, and iron right side out. Fold again lengthwise and iron again. This polishes the cloth. Iron with the straight of the goods. Change position of folds slightly and your linens will live longer. Iron damask on the wrong side without folding; then polish and fold on the right side. Iron napkins straight. Don't tug their corners (in drying or ironing), or they'll grow cockeyed.

Presidential Succession

The 20th amendment to the constitution provides: The vice president-elect becomes president if the president-elect dies before the beginning of the presidential term or the president-elect fails to qualify, the vice president-elect acts as president until a president does qualify; congress is given power to provide for the case where neither a president-elect nor a vice president-elect qualifies.

Vegetables

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, homemakers are beginning to make plans for that important dinner menu. The War Food Administration advises, however, that turkeys for civilian holiday dinners will be short of demand despite the partial suspension of the turkey set-aside order. Chickens, ducks, and geese are more available, but these items, too, are not expected to supply the heavy civilian demand for poultry.

The cranberries for sauce to go along with the bird will also be in rather light supply, as the crop this year was only slightly more than half of last year's. To make the most of their bright color, tart flavor, and Vitamin C, it is suggested that they be used raw. Grind them with raw apple and an orange, peel and all, everything but the hard core and seeds. Sweeten this raw fruit relish to taste.

Apples are one of the most plentiful and reasonably priced fruit commodities offered at this time—especially the lower grades. Moderate supplies of grapefruit are selling at prices within the average homemaker's budget, and there is a slightly lower price trend on oranges. Winter pears are available, and if they are under-ripe when purchased, they can easily be ripened at home by letting them stand at room temperature until they yield to slight thumb or fingertip pressure. A few persimmons, pineapples, pomegranates and tangerines are also on hand for the holiday trade.

The prices of several fresh vegetables have taken an upward trend during the past week. These include celery, the best quality tomatoes, head lettuce, and good quality western carrots. Cucumbers are now in the luxury brackets as the result of short supplies due to storm damage. Onions, however, continue a reasonably priced item, and onions French fried to a crisp golden brown are a tasty dish that almost any man will relish. Cabbage, too, is a pretty good buy. Cabbage is tasty both cooked and raw, steamed or creamed, or served as slaw. Beets, winter squash, rutabagas, snap beans and most greens are reasonably priced.

Tooth polish

THINGS TO COME — A new type of electric iron, which eliminates the need to stand and press down while ironing; the user simply sits and guides the clothes "through" the iron with her hands. . . . An inexpensive, new kind of porous, fire-resistant plaster for sound conditioning the walls and ceilings of homes and offices heretofore considered too small for such treatment . . . Tooth plish, a new cosmetic which guarantees glistening white teeth. It's applied like nail polish.

Fuel oil

Fuel oil consumers who converted to coal may return to the use of oil, if they wish, says the OPA. . . . Eastman Kodak company reports that it takes as much as three years of figuring—exact, in results, to a fraction of a "light wave"—to compute mathematically the curvatures of a new photographic lens . . . With home building costs up 30 per cent from the 1940 level, a house built for $6,000 before the war would now cost around $7,800.

Clothes

America's consumers from six months to 16 years—not to mention their mothers will be cheered by the fact that the War Production Board has taken further steps toward allocating materials in its third infants' and and childrens' apparel program calling for production and distribution of roundly 30,000,000 units from December 1 through next February 28. WPB has given priority assistance to producers to obtain cotton and flannelette fabrics. Outerwear, pajamas and underwear are included in the current children's apparel program. Low cost goods of durable quality is stressed. The increased quantities of apparel are expected to be available to retail stores during the first quarter of 1945.

Cars

The quota of new passenger cars available for rationing in November is set at 3,000 by the ofnice of Price Administration, or the same number as in the past two months. In addition a regional and national reserve of 600 cars has been authorized. The stockpile of new cars available for rationing is now under 20,000—less than a normal pre-war two-day supply.

Soldiers

American soldiers in this war are better educated than those who fought in the last war, studies by the United States Office of Education, Federal Security Agency and the War Department indicate. Medium level of education of soldiers in this war is the second year of high school, whereas that level was only the sixth grade grammar school in the last war. In this war 23.3 per cent of our fighters had completed four years of high school in contrast with only 3.5 per cent of the soldiers in the previous war. The two largest groups in both wars included those who had completed no more than five to eight years of grade school, with a percentage of 27.4 in this war as against 55.5 per cent in the last war.

New watches

THINGS TO COME — Fashionably designed paper dishes, priced so low that you can afford to throw them away after a meal, to supplant china in restaurants and homes. . . . Sparkplugs for motor vehicles which will function effectively three to four times longer than pre-war plugs. . . . Watches that will indicate the date of the month as well as the hour of the day.

New tires

The November quota of new automobile tires allocated by the War Production Board will be 1,850,000 or 250,000 more than in October. "As near as we can tell, this quota should satisfy normal November replacement needs of eligible 'B' and 'C' ration holders," Max McCullough, Deputy OPA Rationing Administrator said. He pointed out that the ration quota this month makes it "clear that recapping will still be necessary for most motorists if they are to keep their cars in operation." Unfilled "B" and "C" tire applications, needed increases in dealer inventories and a higher production rate are required before "A" ration holders can expect new tires.

Red tape

Two million postwar jobs could be supplied in the field of distribution if each employer in the service trades would hire one more employee, says Eric Johnson, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. . . . Latin America is seen as market for $10 billion worth of new and used industrial equipment in the first ten postwar years. . . . Johns-Manville corporation reports that it filed with government agencies 71,588 reports and questionnaires last year, or about one report every two minutes during every regular business hour of the year.

Offer 973 U.S. factories for sale or lease

For sale or lease: 973 government-owned factories and factory sites in 41 states.

As a starter in reckoning with this aspect of the surplus disposal problem, the Defense Plant corporation has mailed to all banks and chambers of commerce a pamphlet describing details of these properties. They range in size from a 300-square foot factory site to a plant covering 5,146,800 square feet.

Opinion in business circles is that there will be plenty of takers for the smaller factories because of the deep-rooted urge of the average American to go into business for himself. The larger plants may have to be partitioned into smaller units capable of housing several manufacturers under one roof.

The current demand for businesses, although mostly in the retailing field, is somewhat encouraging to the government's chances of moving these properties, when they are no longer needed for war production. One business broker reports he has clients ready to buy several hundred machine shops. On the other hand, he believes he could sell twice as many taverns, if available. Another broker says inquiries are growing for bowling alleys, delicatessens, groceries, meat markets, drugstores and garages, filling stations and neighborhood variety stores. Many women workers in war plants who hope to gain a postwar livelihood in shops of their own, today are studying at schools of dress designing and beauty culture.

Diapers

Though hardly a dozen years old, the business of supplying diapers to homes with babies has become an important commercial undertaking. Its success is typical of the opportunities offered in this country to individuals who have good ideas and are willing to work hard. Sales of diaper service companies, now established in most fair-sized communities, are approximately $12,000,000 a year, according to estimates of Business Week magazine. Diaper customers number a quarter of a million, and at that, a lot of people are not being served because the companies can't get materials for more diapers.

Those in the trade say that the business was started in the early 30's by two boys just out of college. They launched their idea in a small way, washing diapers for neighbors in the cellars of their own homes. When enough profits had been saved, they bought a truck, which enabled them to widen the territory covered. Eventually they had enough profits saved to rent a laundry. Today the company they founded in this slow and painstaking way is one of the leaders in the field.

Tobacco

Primest cheese prices at all levels of distribution will be three cents a pound higher as a result of OPA action to relieve hardship suffered by manufacturers under the previous price ceiling.

Ceiling prices of plug chewing tobacco have been increased by 20 per cent at all sales levels as a step to help manufacturers overcome the increased cost burden under which they operate.

Leather-soled moccasins with a house-slipper type of construction will continue to be stocked by stores as ration-free footwear through December 31. After that date this type of footwear will be classified as rationed.

Buyers of coal and other solid fuels are entitled to receive from their dealer an invoice, sales slip or receipt that contains full information about the kind of coal sold to them and the price paid. This is required of dealers by an OPA provision effective November 11.

Future cars

For several years now many automobile manufacturers have been telling the American public that they will resume production with an automobile that is basically the 1942 model. But this week it developed that at least one automobile company is planning a new car from the ground up. Upsetting the industry's applecart was Joseph W. Frazer, new chairman of Graham-Paige Motors corporation, who announced that his company will build an automobile which will depart from the conventional design and utilize plastics, light-metals and other recent developments.

"We may not have the first car on the market in the postwar period," said Frazer, "but we do plan to have the first real postwar automobile. The prospective design for our new model is crystallizing and we expect to be as modern as tomorrow. Our immediate objective is not to build a 'used car.'"

Matches

Hold that light, mister, will continue to be the popular phrase in coming months, according to a War Production Board report which states that about 90 per cent of all penny box matches and 25 per cent of all book matches produced in the next six months will be delivered to the armed forces. Although few penny box matches will be available to civilians durmg this period, matches of the household "strike anywhere" type will be produced in sufficient quantity to meet all civilian needs.

New bikes

THINGS TO COME—Folding bicycles, which can be collapsed into the size of one wheel for easy carrying or compact shipment. . . . A machine for grading peas, beans and other vegetables, according to differences in their specific gravities, thus eliminating necessity for handling or sifting. . . . Phosphorescent cases for flashlights to make them easy to locate in the dark.

Shop death

Encouraging results are being obtained in the home front fight against on-the-job fatalties among the nation's gigantic production force of 50½ million workers. Experience so far this year indicates that the industrial fatality record in 1944 may drop as much as 8 per cent below last year's level of 18,000 deaths.

"Just about all of the fellows I was stationed with at Miami Beach, Fla., have ben shipped overseas or have been transferred into outfits that are ready to leave.

"We just came back to camp from a week out in the field and it's really a rugged life.

"If anyone back home thinks they have it tough, they can come up and take my place in the field for a week, and I'm sure they'd be glad to get home again. Even so, we don't have it a tenth as tough as the fellows overseas because we don't sleep in fox holes and we know no one is going to shoot at us.

"I haven't been home in nearly a year so I'm hoping to get home around Christmas time.

Virginia

From Little Creek, Virginia, comes word of Joe Smart of Arlington Heights.

"Well here I am in dear old Virginia. Who am I kidding. I wouldn't wish this state on my worst enemy, especially the town of Norfolk.

"The train ride was ok as we had a pullman. After Cincinnati our only other layover was at Richmond, Va. We passed through the Appalachians during the morning and it sure is pretty in those parts. The western part of Virginia is the only part worth seeing.

"We arrived in Newport News and got our first taste of salt water when we ferried across Chesapeake Bay. It took about an hour and then we hit the 'great' city of Norfolk. What a dump. As we walked down the street all we could see was white hats and blues. I had never seen so many sailors at once in my life.

"The town itself is very sad. Nothing to do, but go to a show. So that's what we did. The gals in that town are really beat. I sure won't go to Norfolk on liberty if I can go anywhere else.

"About 2131 we caught a bus to Little Creek and got our bedding, etc. This morning we turned the bedding back in and held our first muster, one of the daily three while here in the receiving center. And was it cold! Brr. The fog was so thick that we had to slice our way through with my buddies knife. Well almost, anyhow!

"This morning some of us went down to the piers and looked at our future home, the LSM or Landing Ship Medium. They also land tanks, etc. We actually went aboard one and looked around. Being a radioman I was interested in the radio shack and looked at it for a while. It has room for one man to take code at a time. It's a nice little room and very compact.

"After chow, which was very good, we mustered again and then had some crazy classification test. What a mess it was. I don't even see the sense in taking it. It was more or less a psychoanalysis of one's self.

"As it is heard here the radiomen have the best deal by far. Very little or no P. T. and good schooling, etc. We talked to some RM's from the U of C here and they bucked us up quite a bit.

"As you probably noticed I have a new address. This will probably be my permanent one while here. This afternoon we were assigned to a crew and will start school Thursday. This is very unusual as most of the fellows wait in the receiving area for a week or more.

"However most of the crews formed last week were short radiomen and they shoved us right in. Pretty good if you ask me. I am with another fellow from our company at U. C. but he's a sad one. Also aboard are two strikers who are just learning code and a second class (petty officer) radioman. He is our boss. It should be easy for us to get a rate, or so he said.

"After four weeks of radio school the entire crew goes to different classes in fire fighting, and taking care of the ship in general. Then we get a 71 hour pass and go out on our shakedown cruise for two weeks. After that I don't know what happens. Maybe I'll get a leave."

His address is S1c (RM) Joseph D. Smart, 944-67-72, Unit 1102, Div. 2, ATB, Little Creek, Va.

England

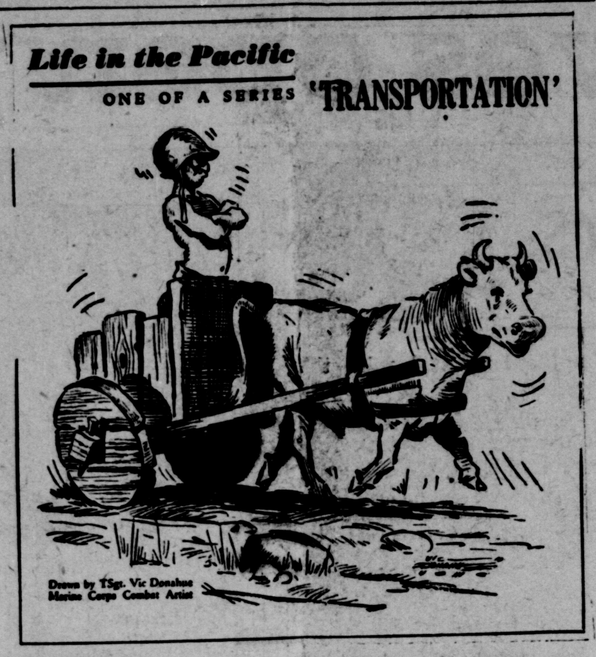

From England comes word of Harry Smart Jr., of Arlington Heights.

Harry and Joe Smart are twins, and both in the service. Harry, the oldest, entered the navy first. When it appeared Joe was going to pass him by in the service, by advancing to seaman, first class, rating, Harry suddenly received word that he had also made seaman first, just two days before Joe. "As it was in the beginning, so is it now".

"Santa Claus arrived early this year. Never expected to get any packages for some time, but here they are. The cans of soup are a prize. Expect to cook and eat them before the week's over. I got everything from soup to nuts, for that is just what I did.

"The pretzels will go good with my guiness (English Beer). Right now I am chewing some delicious morbid orbit. Sherman was right. Most original gift was set of stamp pad with name and service number, plus ink.

"Played two games of basketball last night, and we won both of them. I played in the first game and looked at the nurses during the second. The army travels in style. We have a bus bigger than a Greyhound and they bring the nurses along to keep up our morale."

'Glad to see you' say Philippine civilians

"It was worth a year's pay to watch those tired, happy little people come down out of the hills at Leyte, most of them in tattered rags, with salutes and smiles for their American liberators," crewmen of this Coast Guard-manned assault transport agreed today.

A member of this crew was Coast Guardsman Robert Anderson of 506 South York rd., Bensenville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ewald R. Anderson of the same address.

"They kept saying 'Happy to see Americans!' in their schoolroom English, the first they had spoken after nearly three years of Japanese oppression," the men said. "We were treated like visiting royalty. In the joy of these Filipinos, we began to see in a very personal sense what we were fighting for.

"They had suffered cruelly under Jap rule. They received starvation wages and rations, lost most of their valuables and were subjected to unspeakable humiliations. Most of them looked very thin and poorly clothed. But the Army soon had them housed and fed. All of us gave them food, tobacco and candy."

The Coast Guardsman described how Filipino guerillas came down to the beaches with the civilians to exchange old rifles for modern carbines. Then they disappeared up the mountain trails, some of them packing hand grenades. The battle, for them, had just begun.

The Coast Guardsman related some of the experiences told by the liberated nationals:

"A Filipino merchant related that the Japanese paid such low wages, and charged so much for even such staples as rice, that most of the people were able to afford only one meal a day. A former Filipino officer, passenger in a small American naval vessel that had been sunk near Leyte at the start of the war, described how he managed to escape detection by staying in the water behind a raft. Then he swam ashore and joined the guerillas."

The Filipinos told their liberators how the Japs used to taunt them by saying the Americans had "deserted" them. But the happy throng that welcomed the American troops and sailors said the "fatalistic" Nipponese defenders —some of them among the troops that seized Bataan— fled in terror at the approach of the invasion fleet October 20.

The history of the boys' own transport symbolized the speed and force with which the Americans returned to the Philippines.

A year ago this month she was finishing trial runs. Extensive maneuvers followed and on February 1 of this year she participated in her first invasion, in the Marshalls. Operations in the Bismarck Sea, at Saipan and Palau, brought her to the Philippines at the same time that General MacArthur's forces moved up from the southwest. She had crossed the Pacific in less than 10 months! During each invasion, they said, dozens of new ships joined the fleet.

"By the time we got here," Bob commented, "we had so many ships one couldn't have fired a gun across San Pedro Bay without hitting a half dozen of them. Our battleships and planes made certain there weren't any Jap guns left in those hills to do that!"

"Am now in Germany. Carl Schwolow and Harold Chamberlain, both of Arlington, are still with me. Am writing this from my foxhole, and in the rain. It has been raining night and day for a long time.

From Fort Bragg, North Carolina, comes word of Carl Huter of Palatine.

"In just seven days I will be in the service three years and it seems like ten. I'll sure be glad when it's all over, but then I guess so will twenty million other people.

"Just about all of the fellows I was stationed with at Miami Beach, Fla., have ben shipped overseas or have been transferred into outfits that are ready to leave.

"We just came back to camp from a week out in the field and it's really a rugged life.

"If anyone back home thinks they have it tough, they can come up and take my place in the field for a week, and I'm sure they'd be glad to get home again. Even so, we don't have it a tenth as tough as the fellows overseas because we don't sleep in fox holes and we know no one is going to shoot at us.

"I haven't been home in nearly a year so I'm hoping to get home around Christmas time.

"I still receive the Enterprise every week and can't thank the people enough that are responsible for my receiving it."

NW league fives open play this week.

Pirates play good ball beat Wauconda, 42-23

Lights take second in row

Palatine played good ball in both games Friday night in the home openers and sent Wauconda away with a double defeat. The varsity hit the basket consistently after the first quarter to win easily 42-23 while the lights led all the way in a 28-18 victory.

Vogt and Smith hit twice apiece from the field to send the Pirate first team into a 10-4 lead in the opening period and Vogt hit three more in the second quarter as Palatine moved farther in front 20-7. In the third quarter Bob Birks, sophomore forward, entered the game and sank three field goals in less than a minute. Palatine made five of their first seven attempts in the third quarter and took a commanding lead of 36-10 at one time. Wauconda rallied somewhat against Palatine substitutes in the fourth quarter.

Wauconda could get nowhere except on shots over Palatine's shifting zone defense. Gerald Harvey who scored 14 points was the only Wauconda boy to do much shooting or hit with any degree of consistency. Vogt topped Palatine with 12 points, Smith had 10 and Birks eight. Palatine played fast, alert basketball and showed a smooth passing attack.

The Palatine lightweights played good and bad at different times in the game. They were very good at the start of the third quarter when Gustafson sparked an attack which netted 10 points in two minutes but at other times their passing was poor and their shooting even worse. Palatine led 10-5 at the half and 22-12 starting the final quarter. Palatine lights were the only team of the evening to make half their free throws. It was their second straight victory and a much improved performance over Tuesday's win at Ela. Gustafson and LeBaron played the most consistent basketball for Palatine. R. Harvey was tops for Wauconda.

MAC SAYS:

BY GERALD A. McELROY

There are few changes in the basketball rules this year, but annually the rule makers find some ways in which to improve the game. One of the most important really does not effect high school games except in rare cases. That is the regulation against tipping the ball away from the basket when it is dropping toward the hoop. Some college teams have had six foot six to six foot ten inch centers who have batted long shots away from the loop on defense and prevented an effective long shooting game These teams played a tight zone and invited their opponents to shoot over them. The rule aims to take away some of the advantage of the tall man.

Unlimited substitution a new cage rule

As far as high schools are concerned the new rule allowing unlimited substitution is very important. Formerly a boy could not reenter a game after leaving it for the third time. Now he may be put in and taken out as many times as desired. This rule is good in that boys may be taken out for a brief rest in the closing stages of hard fought games or over time periods without losing them for further playing. Coaches will be coaching their team a great deal more by taking boys out and sending them in with instructions on team and individual playing.

It will be a relief for the score keepers who formerly had to check carefully the number of times in and out for each player. Substitutions may be made more rapidly and the scorers will have more time to do their real work of keeping the tally of points. Some coaches are certain to abuse this new rule by doing excessive substituting in the closing minutes of losing games to gain time. The rule will be a big help to the small school with a limited squad as the boys may be changed more frequently to escape loss by the foul rule and to keep them fresh.

Another change in rule which will help the scorers is that requiring each coach to submit a list of names and numbers of all squad members at least two minutes before the game starts. The penalty is a technical foul for failure to do so.

A change in rules from four to five fouls for disqualification is in the books but is nothing new to Illinois high school basketball as this idea was tried out here as a state rule last year. The rule proved satisfactry and did not lead to excessive fouling.

Northeast has tough cage league

If anyone thought the Northeast Conference teams were tough last year when they played freelance they have not seen anything yet. The league appears to us to be the strongest of any time since those Crystal Lake Tigers ran rampant throught it some five years ago and won every varsity game and copped the lightweight title along with it.

Crystal Lake is title favorite

Right now without a single preseason game on the record books we feel certain that Crystal Lake will finish first or second. We are picking them to romp off with the championship. Last year they lost only two games all year and they have every regular returning. It's the same team again which manufactured 26 points in one quarter against Arlington Heights and scored 73 in the game. They are hot shooters and have a fast break that was really a whiz. If they are much better this year they should breeze through their schedule but we don't think they will.

Majority of teams have experienced players

Libertyville has five lettermen back including three very fine ball players. Niles has one player from a championship team but has the finest group of boys moving to varsity ball that the school ever turned out and they are both tall and fast. Woodstock has a veteran team returning which played some very good ball a year ago. Warren had a poor season but has five lettermen on their squad. Leyden was no great shakes last year but has an experienced squad including six varsity veterans.

Arlington Heights had a poor season on paper but played a better ball than some Arlington teams which won more games. The Cards have five lettermen back but are still lacking in height which hurt them last year. Lake Forest returns to conference basketball after two years without the sport but has a tall team of boys who have been playing intramural ball in the school and gaining experience on North Shore independent teams.

Non-conference games over the Thanksgiving period should give some indication of the probable strength of the Northeast league but these early scores should not be counted too heavily. The Northeast played football well into November and can hardly be in stride for basketball even by December 1, their official opening day. Only by Christmas time can a real indication of strength be determined.

Rose Ann Grosche to. Officiate at tourney

Rose and Grosche, top flight officials from up Waukegan way, told me Friday night when they worked the Wauconda game that they have accepted the contract offered them to referee the Northwest Conference tourney December 28-30 at Wauconda. Last year these men rated among the top four in the state in rules exams but it is their good judgment and pleasing personalities that make them most successful in this hectic profession. Al Grosche is physical education teacher and head baseball coach at Waukegan high school while Meyer Rose is a clerk in the postoffice in North Chicago. Palatine has this pair working the Homecoming games Saturday night and the Arlington games January 13.

Three trophies for N. W. tournament

The Northwest Conference tournament committee met after the Ela-Palatine game last Tuesday and decided the details of the league tournament. Men not involved in the games were there scouting. It was decided to have awards this year for first, second and third places. The four game program of opening night will start at 6:00 p. m., semi-finals will be Friday and finals, preceded by a game for third honors, will be played Saturday night.

Field lights for football means dropped from league

Progressive Waukegan High had gone ahead with plans to put in lights on their football field for next season. Now they are faced with the prospect of being forced to drop from the suburban league if they do so for other member schools refuse to play games at night. The league would drop them in all sports if they quit it in football. Waukegan officials are asking all organizations of the town to hold a referendum on the question of putting in lights and leaving the league or staying in it without a lighted field. The school will abide by the decision of the fans. We knew the suburban league was conservative but not quite that bad.

We missed the banquet

We could not attend the Arlington grid banquet last Wednesday as we were sick in bed that day and part of the next. We hated that plenty for we wanted to add our congratulations to Coach Armand Seidler, Principal M. F. Egdorf, and the team, on a great year. We think Arlington accomplished more with the material at hand than any team in Illinois. Seidler turned in a great job and the boys displayed the team spirit of champions. Before the season we can honestly say we doubted if the Cards would make the first division. Some Arlington folks we talked to felt really sorry for Seidler and his weak material.

This Card team deserves more recognition than most of Arlington's championship teams. Certainly this team was the best conditioned of any we have seen in watching Arlington for 14 years. We understand they worked unusually hard and loved to do it. Seidler adapted his football plays to the material available and made the most of it. Personally we like the style he used and so do most fans.

We did not see Arlington play very often but on the few occasions we saw the best block of the year made by Aldrich, the best catch of a forward pass by Page, the best open field running by MacDonald, the best executed play on Seidler's pet screen pass, the best game of the year at Crystal Lake, and in short we saw the team and coach of the year in suburban football in the amazing Cardinals of Arlington and their aggressive young coach, Armand Seidler.

Order 26 4-engined ships for stratosphere runs

AIR LEVIATHANS—Here's the new DC-7 Superclipper, carrying 108 passengers and crew of 13 at more than 300 mph. Pan American World Airways has ordered 26 from Douglas Aircraft company at total cost of $40,000,000. They are Pan American's postwar bid for mass, low-cost air travel for average man.

Planes will carry 100 passengers at 300 miles an hour

Details of a great postwar transport project in which Douglas Aircraft company, with the cooperation of Pan American World Airways engineers, has developed an advanced type of giant sub-stratosphere clippers were revealed here today by Donald W. Douglas, president of the aircraft company.

The contract, largest and most significant in the history of commercial aviation, calls for delivery to Pan Amercan of a fleet of 26 four-engined clippers, designed as DC-7s, at a cost of $40,000,000.

Although final production details cannot at this time be made public, Douglas officials say the Pan American sky giants will be built at the company's Long Beach plant.

Carrying 108 passengers and a crew of 13 and capable of speeds of more than 300 miles an hour, these giant clippers will make possible Pan American's program of mass transportation, bringing swift economical travel within the reach of the everage man.

Spacious pressurized cabins in these huge new clippers will provide for comfortable travel at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

The immensity of these new Douglas clippers is emphasized by the fact that their wings will be longer, from tip to tip, than a 16-story building and large enough for interior passage-ways for servicing and repairing engines in flight.

They will be twice as large as the giant clippers now flying Pan American's trans-oceanic routes and seven times larger than the standard DC-3 transports in operation all over the world. They will have many accommodations and conveniences never before attempted in commercial air transportation.

The huge new planes, it was revealed, would be used by Pan American in its great Latin American expansion program and possibly in other long-distance services. The pioneer airline would operate these big clippers directly to Latin America from New York, as well as from Miami, New Orleans, and Los Angeles at fares as low at 3½ cents a mile.

The mammoth planes would carry passengers from New York to Buenos Aires in 22 hours, to Rio de Janeiro in 19 hours and span the Pacific from Los Angeles and San Francisco to Honolulu in about 8 hours, making it possible for the everyday citizen to spend 12 days of his two weeks vacation abroad.

Although dates of delivery to Pan American will depend upon progress of the war and government decisions on production and manpower priorities, most of the engineering has been completed and the basic airplane of this size is actually under construction at the Long Beach California plant of the Douglas company.

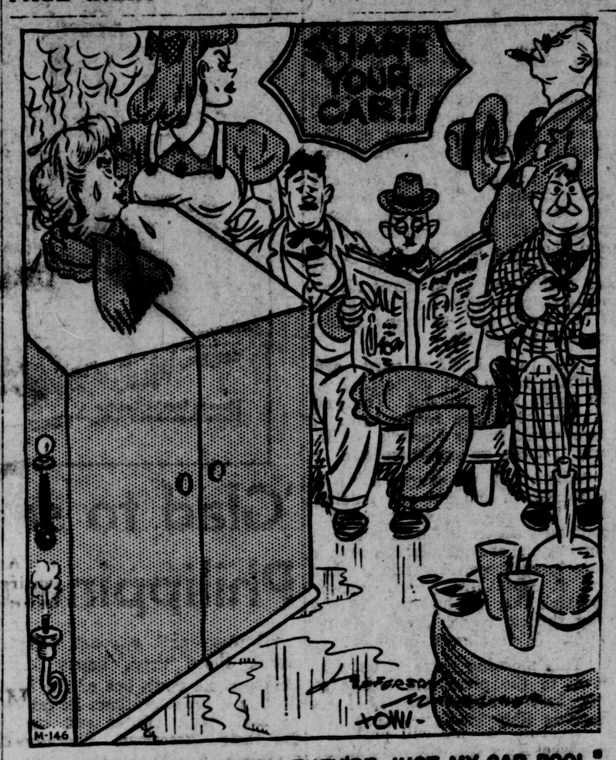

The new California-built clipper will be powered by four Pratt & Whitney engines of even greater displacement than the 2100-horsepower Double Wasps. Details of this new engine are still a heavily guarded military secret. The great plane also is equipped with the super-hydromatic Hamilton Standard propeller, a new design representing distinct advances in airplane propulsion.

The new million and a half dollar Douglas clippers will have two spacious cabins, one accommodating 72 passengers and the other 36, besides a modern galley equipped for serving full course meals, dressing rooms, toilets, cargo compartment, flight deck and compartment for pilots. There will also be large storage compartments for food and electrically operated stoves and refrigerators will be included in the modern equipment.

Thermal de-icing systems, built into the wings and other surfaces, will make make comfortable all-weather flight possible at high altitudes.

Blue Comb Disease

Recent research at the University of Connecticut has shown that potassium compounds help birds recover from the blue comb disease. Use one level teaspoonful of potassium chloride or a high-grade muriate of potash fertilizer to each gallon of drinking water for 10 days. Anything that causes an acute digestive trouble may give chickens a blue or darkened comb, say the specialists. This type of comb may be associated with contagious or non-contagious conditions. When the distinct "blue comb" disease appears, it is well to clean and disinfect the poultry house.

Bisons off form against NE foe

Bensenville dropped a double bill to Leyden in the season basketball openers Friday night. The Bison varsity lost 23-17 in a game in which neither team made a decent percentage of shots. The Bisons were badly off form in this respect. The Bisons' lights lost 26-12 after trailing 20-1 at the half.

Mazulla was Leyden's outstanding performer in the varsity game with nine points. Ernsting had six and Schoppe five for the Bisons. Both teams were o. k. on defense but were not ready for conference competition from the stand point of offense.

The junior Bisons had trouble getting the ball up the court against Leyden's tight man for man defense and fell far behind in the first half when bad passes gave Leyden numerous chances. Huffman scored eight of Bensenville's 12 points.

Warren whips Antioch twice

Antioch dropped both ends of their double games at Warren Friday. The Indians kept pace with Warren for three quarters but in the last eight minutes experience began to tell and Bob Kelton's Blue Devils forged ahead for a 34-20 victory. Warren's lights won 20-16.

Warren has five returning lettermen but the tallest men are just short of six feet in height which is a distinct handicap in a league like the Northeast conference. Miller, a 5-8 forward is the only senior among the lettermen. The four juniors are Rosene, 5-11½ guard, Cannon, 5-1 guard; Babcox, 5-11½ center; and Eiserman, 5-7 forward. Metcalf, a 5-11 junior, and Stand, a 5-10½ senior are most promising boys up from last season's lightweights.

Niles loses opener to New Trier five, 40-24

Niles lost their opening varsity game to New Tier 40-24 Friday night but won the lightweight contest 38-27. Niles will have one of the better teams in the Northeast this year even though they have just one returning boy from a varsity squad of 12. However this one is Arthur Anderson, high scorer of last season's fine ball team. He will give the Trojans the leadership they need. Junior varsity and frosh-sophs moving up are said to be the most talented group that Niles has ever had and once they get organized and used to varsity ball should be a real threat in the league.

Only sophomore on the Niles varsity is Frank Williams standing 6-4 and weighing 202 pounds. He is a brother of the star "Red" Williams of a few years ago and according to Niles coaches is a much greater prospect than his talented brother.

The Niles varsity squad which plays at Highland Park Wednesday night and opens the Northeast season at Warren December 1 is listed below.

NILES

	Weight	Height
A. Anderson	152	5-10
E. Reiman	179	6- 2½
W. Kunkel	155	6- ½
E. Heartstedt	154	5-11½

Bisons vs Broncs, Palatine host to N'brook, Cards at Maine

The Northwest Conference opens tonight (Tuesday), with one double header as Bensenville's Bisons, who ran a close second last year, travel to Barrington for the opener. The rest of the Northwest Schools play their opening league games Wednesday. Barrington will be a strong favorite over Bensenville in both games. The Bronchos have a lot of experienced players who easily whipped Ela in a non-league game last Friday and are expected to lead the league.

Also tonight the Arlington Cardinals open their season at Maine Township in a practice game. Their league season opens on December 1 when they are host to Woodstock. Next Tuesday the Cards have their home opener against Ela. With such capable performers as Botterman, Page, and Stroker available the Cards are expecting to put a much more formidable quintet on the hard wood this year than last. Not much can be determined from the outcome of the Maine game except that if the Cards push the Des Plaines team pretty hard it will be a signal for optimism on the part of Arlington fans who last year saw the Cards swamped by Maine.

Northbrook at Palatine Wednesday

Wednesday night Palatine opens the Northwest season against Northbrook on the home court where the Pirates have always been mighty tough. In fact Palatine has lost an average of just one game a year at home for the past seven seasons. Friday's smashing victories over Wauconda were thoroughly enjoyed by the loyal Palatine cage fans who turned out for one of the best opening night games in the history of the school. Palatine will get plenty of basket ball this week for again on Saturday the Pirates perform. Lake Forest's untried Scouts come for the varsity game while Arlington's strong junior team is doped to whip the Palatine lights handily in the preliminary. After the games the homecoming dance will be held with no extra admission for the triple event. Then on next Tuesday Palatine will try their luck against big school competition at Maine Twp.

Pirate lineup being shifted

Coach Stutzman of Palatine shifted his lineup in last Friday's game and seems to have discovered just who his best boys are but this is still subject to revision. Hapke and Vogt, seniors, are looking far the best at guards though Howes showed up good at that spot making it possible to shift Vogt to center where he is quick and an effective shot. Roger Smith's shooting and peppery playing seem to make him a cinch on the varsity five at the present. He shot five baskets Friday. Smith is the only squad member under 5-11 and he is only 5-7. Toppel scored little, has more drive and is one of Palatine's most improved forwards. Jost started the game but was a little slow against a man for man defense and saw little action. Birks, slim soph forward, showed more aggressiveness than usual and got four baskets in the fourth quarter to make a bid for a starting position he lost after the Ela game.

Palatine's lightweights on Friday appear to have their strongest lineup in their starting five of Kolze and Pepper, forwards; LeBaron, center; and Freye and Gustafson, guards. Pepper is a freshman who came this year from Barrington. Freye is a junior who returned to Palatine last spring from Oklahoma after doing his grade school work here. He has had little experience. Knigge who appeared improved at forward Friday and Thompson, sub center, are the other juniors on the squad. The rest are sophomores.

NW league fives open play this week

Pirates play good ball beat Wauconda, 42-23

Lights take second in row

Palatine played good ball in both games Friday night in the home openers and sent Wauconda away with a double defeat. The varsity hit the basket consistently after the first quarter to win easily 42-23 while the lights led all the way in a 28-18 victory.

Vogt and Smith hit twice apiece from the field to send the Pirate first team into a 10-4 lead in the opening period and Vogt hit three more in the second quarter as Palatine moved farther in front 20-7. In the third quarter Bob Birks, sophomore forward, entered the game and sank three field goals in less than a minute. Palatine made five of their first seven attempts in the third quarter and took a commanding lead of 36-10 at one time. Wauconda rallied somewhat against Palatine substitutes in the fourth quarter.

Wauconda could get nowhere except on shots over Palatine's shifting zone defense. Gerald Harvey who scored 14 points was the only Wauconda boy to do much shooting or hit with any degree of consistency. Vogt topped Palatine with 12 points, Smith had 10 and Birks eight. Palatine played fast, alert basketball and showed a smooth passing attack.

The Palatine lightweights played good and bad at different times in the game. They were very good at the start of the third quarter when Gustafson sparked an attack which netted 10 points in two minutes but at other times their passing was poor and their shooting even worse. Palatine led 10-5 at the half and 22-12 starting the final quarter. Palatine lights were the only team of the evening to make half their free throws. It was their second straight victory and a much improved performance over Tuesday's win at Ela. Gustafson and LeBaron played the most consistent basketball for Palatine. R. Harvey was tops for Wauconda.

Northeast has tough cage league

If anyone thought the Northeast Conference teams were tough last year when they played freelance they have not seen anything yet. The league appears to us to be the strongest of any time since those Crystal Lake Tigers ran rampant throught it some five years ago and won every varsity game and copped the lightweight title along with it.

Right now without a single preseason game on the record books we feel certain that Crystal Lake will finish first or second. We are picking them to romp off with the championship. Last year they lost only two games all year and they have every regular returning. It's the same team again which manufactured 26 points in one quarter against Arlington Heights and scored 73 in the game. They are hot shooters and have a fast break that was really a whiz. If they are much better this year they should breeze through their schedule but we don't think they will.

Majority of teams have experienced players

Libertyville has five lettermen back including three very fine ball players. Niles has one player from a championship team but has the finest group of boys moving to varsity ball that the school ever turned out and they are both tall and fast. Woodstock has a veteran team returning which played some very good ball a year ago. Warren had a poor season but has five lettermen on their squad. Leyden was no great shakes last year but has an experienced squad including six varsity veterans.

Arlington Heights had a poor season on paper but played a better ball than some Arlington teams which won more games. The Cards have five lettermen back but are still lacking in height which hurt them last year. Lake Forest returns to conference basketball after two years without the sport but has a tall team of boys who have been playing intramural ball in the school and gaining experience on North Shore independent teams.

Non-conference games over the Thanksgiving period should give some indication of the probable strength of the Northeast league but these early scores should not be counted too heavily. The Northeast played football well into November and can hardly be in stride for basketball even by December 1, their official opening day. Only by Christmas time can a real indication of strength be determined.

Rose Ann Grosche to. Officiate at tourney

Rose and Grosche, top flight officials from up Waukegan way, told me Friday night when they worked the Wauconda game that they have accepted the contract offered them to referee the Northwest Conference tourney December 28-30 at Wauconda. Last year these men rated among the top four in the state in rules exams but it is their good judgment and pleasing personalities that make them most successful in this hectic profession. Al Grosche is physical education teacher and head baseball coach at Waukegan high school while Meyer Rose is a clerk in the postoffice in North Chicago. Palatine has this pair working the Homecoming games Saturday night and the Arlington games January 13.

Three trophies for N. W. tournament

The Northwest Conference tournament committee met after the Ela-Palatine game last Tuesday and decided the details of the league tournament. Men not involved in the games were there scouting. It was decided to have awards this year for first, second and third places. The four game program of opening night will start at 6:00 p. m., semi-finals will be Friday and finals, preceded by a game for third honors, will be played Saturday night.

Field lights for football means dropped from league

Progressive Waukegan High had gone ahead with plans to put in lights on their football field for next season. Now they are faced with the prospect of being forced to drop from the suburban league if they do so for other member schools refuse to play games at night. The league would drop them in all sports if they quit it in football. Waukegan officials are asking all organizations of the town to hold a referendum on the question of putting in lights and leaving the league or staying in it without a lighted field. The school will abide by the decision of the fans. We knew the suburban league was conservative but not quite that bad.

We missed the banquet

We could not attend the Arlington grid banquet last Wednesday as we were sick in bed that day and part of the next. We hated that plenty for we wanted to add our congratulations to Coach Armand Seidler, Principal M. F. Egdorf, and the team, on a great year. We think Arlington accomplished more with the material at hand than any team in Illinois. Seidler turned in a great job and the boys displayed the team spirit of champions. Before the season we can honestly say we doubted if the Cards would make the first division. Some Arlington folks we talked to felt really sorry for Seidler and his weak material.

This Card team deserves more recognition than most of Arlington's championship teams. Certainly this team was the best conditioned of any we have seen in watching Arlington for 14 years. We understand they worked unusually hard and loved to do it. Seidler adapted his football plays to the material available and made the most of it. Personally we like the style he used and so do most fans.

We did not see Arlington play very often but on the few occasions we saw the best block of the year made by Aldrich, the best catch of a forward pass by Page, the best open field running by MacDonald, the best executed play on Seidler's pet screen pass, the best game of the year at Crystal Lake, and in short we saw the team and coach of the year in suburban football in the amazing Cardinals of Arlington and their aggressive young coach, Armand Seidler.

Bensenville loses to Leyden 23-17, 26-12

Bisons off form against NE foe

Bensenville dropped a double bill to Leyden in the season basketball openers Friday night. The Bison varsity lost 23-17 in a game in which neither team made a decent percentage of shots. The Bisons were badly off form in this respect. The Bisons' lights lost 26-12 after trailing 20-1 at the half.

Mazulla was Leyden's outstanding performer in the varsity game with nine points. Ernsting had six and Schoppe five for the Bisons. Both teams were o. k. on defense but were not ready for conference competition from the stand point of offense.

The junior Bisons had trouble getting the ball up the court against Leyden's tight man for man defense and fell far behind in the first half when bad passes gave Leyden numerous chances. Huffman scored eight of Bensenville's 12 points.

Box score:

Warren whips Antioch twice

Antioch dropped both ends of their double games at Warren Friday. The Indians kept pace with Warren for three quarters but in the last eight minutes experience began to tell and Bob Kelton's Blue Devils forged ahead for a 34-20 victory. Warren's lights won 20-16.

Warren has five returning lettermen but the tallest men are just short of six feet in height which is a distinct handicap in a league like the Northeast conference. Miller, a 5-8 forward is the only senior among the lettermen. The four juniors are Rosene, 5-11½ guard, Cannon, 5-1 guard; Babcox, 5-11½ center; and Eiserman, 5-7 forward. Metcalf, a 5-11 junior, and Stand, a 5-10½ senior are most promising boys up from last season's lightweights.

Niles loses opener to New Trier five, 40-24

Niles lost their opening varsity game to New Tier 40-24 Friday night but won the lightweight contest 38-27. Niles will have one of the better teams in the Northeast this year even though they have just one returning boy from a varsity squad of 12. However this one is Arthur Anderson, high scorer of last season's fine ball team. He will give the Trojans the leadership they need. Junior varsity and frosh-sophs moving up are said to be the most talented group that Niles has ever had and once they get organized and used to varsity ball should be a real threat in the league.

Only sophomore on the Niles varsity is Frank Williams standing 6-4 and weighing 202 pounds. He is a brother of the star "Red" Williams of a few years ago and according to Niles coaches is a much greater prospect than his talented brother.

The Niles varsity squad which plays at Highland Park Wednesday night and opens the Northeast season at Warren December 1 is listed below.

NILES

A. Anderson	152	5-10
E. Reiman	179	6- 2½

Stuffed Mushrooms

Almost everything may go into stuffed mushrooms. One way to do them is to fill the peeled caps with deviled ham, add a drop of tabasco, sprinkle with finest crumbs, dot with butter or margarine and broil.

Bisons vs Broncs, Palatine host to N'brook, Cards at Maine

The Northwest Conference opens tonight (Tuesday), with one double header as Bensenville's Bisons, who ran a close second last year, travel to Barrington for the opener. The rest of the Northwest Schools play their opening league games Wednesday. Barrington will be a strong favorite over Bensenville in both games. The Bronchos have a lot of experienced players who easily whipped Ela in a non-league game last Friday and are expected to lead the league.

Also tonight the Arlington Cardinals open their season at Maine Township in a practice game. Their league season opens on December 1 when they are host to Woodstock. Next Tuesday the Cards have their home opener against Ela. With such capable performers as Botterman, Page, and Stroker available the Cards are expecting to put a much more formidable quintet on the hard wood this year than last. Not much can be determined from the outcome of the Maine game except that if the Cards push the Des Plaines team pretty hard it will be a signal for optimism on the part of Arlington fans who last year saw the Cards swamped by Maine.

Northbrook at Palatine Wednesday

Wednesday night Palatine opens the Northwest season against Northbrook on the home court where the Pirates have always been mighty tough. In fact Palatine has lost an average of just one game a year at home for the past seven seasons. Friday's smashing victories over Wauconda were thoroughly enjoyed by the loyal Palatine cage fans who turned out for one of the best opening night games in the history of the school. Palatine will get plenty of basket ball this week for again on Saturday the Pirates perform. Lake Forest's untried Scouts come for the varsity game while Arlington's strong junior team is doped to whip the Palatine lights handily in the preliminary. After the games the homecoming dance will be held with no extra admission for the triple event. Then on next Tuesday Palatine will try their luck against big school competition at Maine Twp.

Pirate lineup being shifted

Coach Stutzman of Palatine shifted his lineup in last Friday's game and seems to have discovered just who his best boys are but this is still subject to revision. Hapke and Vogt, seniors, are looking far the best at guards though Howes showed up good at that spot making it possible to shift Vogt to center where he is quick and an effective shot. Roger Smith's shooting and peppery playing seem to make him a cinch on the varsity five at the present. He shot five baskets Friday. Smith is the only squad member under 5-11 and he is only 5-7. Toppel scored little, has more drive and is one of Palatine's most improved forwards. Jost started the game but was a little slow against a man for man defense and saw little action. Birks, slim soph forward, showed more aggressiveness than usual and got four baskets in the fourth quarter to make a bid for a starting position he lost after the Ela game.

Palatine's lightweights on Friday appear to have their strongest lineup in their starting five of Kolze and Pepper, forwards; LeBaron, center; and Freye and Gustafson, guards. Pepper is a freshman who came this year from Barrington. Freye is a junior who returned to Palatine last spring from Oklahoma after doing his grade school work here. He has had little experience. Knigge who appeared improved at forward Friday and Thompson, sub center, are the other juniors on the squad. The rest are sophomores.

Order 26 4-engined ships for stratosphere runs

AIR LEVIATHANS—Here's the new DC-7 Superclipper, carrying 108 passengers and crew of 13 at more than 300 mph. Pan American World Airways has ordered 26 from Douglas Aircraft company at total cost of $40,000,000. They are Pan American's postwar bid for mass, low-cost air travel for average man.

Planes will carry 100 passengers at 300 miles an hour

Details of a great postwar transport project in which Douglas Aircraft company, with the cooperation of Pan American World Airways engineers, has developed an advanced type of giant sub-stratosphere clippers were revealed here today by Donald W. Douglas, president of the aircraft company.

The contract, largest and most significant in the history of commercial aviation, calls for delivery to Pan Amercan of a fleet of 26 four-engined clippers, designed as DC-7s, at a cost of $40,000,000.

Although final production details cannot at this time be made public, Douglas officials say the Pan American sky giants will be built at the company's Long Beach plant.

Carrying 108 passengers and a crew of 13 and capable of speeds of more than 300 miles an hour, these giant clippers will make possible Pan American's program of mass transportation, bringing swift economical travel within the reach of the everage man.

Spacious pressurized cabins in these huge new clippers will provide for comfortable travel at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

The immensity of these new Douglas clippers is emphasized by the fact that their wings will be longer, from tip to tip, than a 16-story building and large enough for interior passage-ways for servicing and repairing engines in flight.

They will be twice as large as the giant clippers now flying Pan American's trans-oceanic routes and seven times larger than the standard DC-3 transports in operation all over the world. They will have many accommodations and conveniences never before attempted in commercial air transportation.

The huge new planes, it was revealed, would be used by Pan American in its great Latin American expansion program and possibly in other long-distance services. The pioneer airline would operate these big clippers directly to Latin America from New York, as well as from Miami, New Orleans, and Los Angeles at fares as low at 3½ cents a mile.

The mammoth planes would carry passengers from New York to Buenos Aires in 22 hours, to Rio de Janeiro in 19 hours and span the Pacific from Los Angeles and San Francisco to Honolulu in about 8 hours, making it possible for the everyday citizen to spend 12 days of his two weeks vacation abroad.

Although dates of delivery to Pan American will depend upon progress of the war and government decisions on production and manpower priorities, most of the engineering has been completed and the basic airplane of this size is actually under construction at the Long Beach California plant of the Douglas company.

The new California-built clipper will be powered by four Pratt & Whitney engines of even greater displacement than the 2100-horsepower Double Wasps. Details of this new engine are still a heavily guarded military secret. The great plane also is equipped with the super-hydromatic Hamilton Standard propeller, a new design representing distinct advances in airplane propulsion.

The new million and a half dollar Douglas clippers will have two spacious cabins, one accommodating 72 passengers and the other 36, besides a modern galley equipped for serving full course meals, dressing rooms, toilets, cargo compartment, flight deck and compartment for pilots. There will also be large storage compartments for food and electrically operated stoves and refrigerators will be included in the modern equipment.

Thermal de-icing systems, built into the wings and other surfaces, will make make comfortable all-weather flight possible at high altitudes.

Blue Comb Disease

Recent research at the University of Connecticut has shown that potassium compounds help birds recover from the blue comb disease. Use one level teaspoonful of potassium chloride or a high-grade muriate of potash fertilizer to each gallon of drinking water for 10 days. Anything that causes an acute digestive trouble may give chickens a blue or darkened comb, say the specialists. This type of comb may be associated with contagious or non-contagious conditions. When the distinct "blue comb" disease appears, it is well to clean and disinfect the poultry house.

It Happened Here

"It sticks in the mind": The mulberry tree, when other trees are stripped, keeping its foliage but burning with a topaz glow like a candle of the Lord. The evening primrose still bearing its golden plaques low down on its raddled stem. The three high school boys playing with a football, one holding a new bushel basket high above his head, the other two taking turns "making a basket". The mysterious whisperings in the vine at night when rain begins to patter. The brightly lighted train speeding into the darkness and a long, mournful whistle dying away. The large box of sunflower seeds raised in a small California garden, picked and mailed to us as a Thanksgiving offering to our cardinals. The waitress at a Kindergarten Club dinner addressing the Assistant District Superintendent, "Say, are you a bunch of school teachers?" The squirrel performing with antic tricks, whirling and sommersauling as at some private jubliation—the opening of the season on rabbits, perhaps? The kindly salesperson who commiserated the customer waiting for change. "It's too bad to keep you waiting like this. Here I'll give you the change from my own purse and take yours."—Thunder rumbling, "The caissons are rolling along."—The unvarying kindness and friendliness of those who serve us.

It Happened Here

"It sticks in the mind": The mulberry tree, when other trees are stripped, keeping its foliage but burning with a topaz glow like a candle of the Lord. The evening primrose still bearing its golden plaques low down on its raddled stem. The three high school boys playing with a football, one holding a new bushel basket high above his head, the other two taking turns "making a basket". The mysterious whisperings in the vine at night when rain begins to patter. The brightly lighted train speeding into the darkness and a long, mournful whistle dying away. The large box of sunflower seeds raised in a small California garden, picked and mailed to us as a Thanksgiving offering to our cardinals. The waitress at a Kindergarten Club dinner addressing the Assistant District Superintendent, "Say, are you a bunch of school teachers?" The squirrel performing with antic tricks, whirling and sommersauling as at some private jubliation —the opening of the season on rabbits, perhaps? The kindly-salesperson who commiserated the customer waiting for change. "It's too bad to keep you waiting like this. Here I'll give you the change from my own purse and take yours."—Thunder rumbling, "The caissons are rolling along."—The unvarying kindness and friendliness of those who serve us.

Farm families spend less, save more in war

Income doubles, savings up

A study of the wartime pattern of saving and spending of 340 Illinois farm families who keep home account books in cooperation with the extension service of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture indicates that even though the families' incomes were double in 1943, they bought less and saved more than in 1941.

This study reveals that the farm families saved two and one-half times as much in 1943 as in 1941, and instead of engaging in any reckless spending spree, they actually cut their level of living.

Although the amount spent for farm living was 14 per cent more than the amount spent in 1941, the money really bought less because prices increased 29 per cent during that period.

The report, which was prepared by Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman and Miss Irene Crouch, University home account specialists, reveals that the families spent on the average 56 percent more on housing repairs in 1943 than in 1941, 75 per cent more on church and welfare, 44 percent more for medical care, 50 percent less on transportation, 17 percent less on equipment and furnishings and 14 percent more on total family expenditures.

If the pattern of spending is interpreted on the basis of a constant purchasing power of the 1910-14 dollar in order to rule out the increased prices, prewar and wartime expenditures for food, clothing, recreation and education remained the same in the total amount, for the families spent just enough more to cover increased prices of items bought.

An average of 15 percent of the savings went into war bonds, 15 per cent into new investments and 20 per cent toward debt retirement. An average of three percent was put into life insurance premiums.

Between the families who had an average income of $500-$900 a year and those with $5000 and over, there was only five percent difference in the amount of the money value of living of farm-furnished food, fuel and use value of the farm dwelling. In the lowest income level this amount was 58 percent, in the highest 53 per cent.

Seed samples must be mailed for testing by Jan. 1

W. A. Hinz, member of Cook County AAA Committee, reminded farmers today that seed not sold to a dealer must be submitted to the State Seed Testing Laboratory at Springfield before January 1, 1945, if it is to be eligible for poundage payment under the 1944 Agricultural Conservation Program.

The seed sample should be sent postage pre-paid to the State Seed Testing Laboratories, 603 Armory Building, Springfield, Illinois. The sender's name and return address should be printed on the outside of the package.

"Red clover, alsike and alfalfa seeds, grown in 1944, are eligible for such payments," Mr. Hinz said.

Paul G. Hoffman to address IAA annual meeting

Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the Committee for Economics Development, will be one of the main speakers at the 30th annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association and associated companies November 27 to December 1 at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, according to an announcement made by IAA officials.

Hoffman, who is president of the Studebaker Corporation, will give his address at the Thursday evening session of the IAA convention, November 30. His subject will be "Business Planning for Postwar Prosperity". Gov. Dwight H. Green will bring greetings to the convention at the Thursday night session.

Speaking at the Friday sessions December 1, will be Dean H. P. Rusk of the U. of I. College of Agriculture; Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and R. B. Corbett, AFBF secretary.

President Earl S. Smith of the IAA will give his annual address at the Thursday morning session, November 30.

Group conferences scheduled for the afternoon of November 30, include organization and information, public relations, schools, soil improvement, and marketing. Among topics scheduled for discussion at the public relations conference are: state postwar planning, veterinarian college at the U. of I., Gateway amendment of state constitution, and postwar agricultural problems.

Final report of the IAA schools committee will be submitted for discussion at the schools conference. Other topics scheduled for consideration at this conference are: revision of state aid to schools, transportation of pupils, and county school committees and surveys.

Soybeans make heavy drain on soil fertility

As a result of a five-year test on an experimental field near Joliet, it has been found that a 25-bushel-an-acre soybean yield removed from the soil about 5.5 pounds of phosphorus and 30 pounds of potassium, according to H. J. Snider, assistant chief, soil experiment fields, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. At present prices for fertilizers, it would cost $2.70, or approximately 10 cents a bushel of beans, to replace in the soil this amount of these two elements.

In this test the soybean crop on an acre contained 135 pounds of nitrogen, which represented the total amount in the entire crop, including the roots, tops and beans. The beans alone—25 bushels—contained approximately 100 lbs. of the total 135 pounds of nitrogen in the crop.

"For the most part, the beans are sold from the farm, and since they contain such a large proportion of the total nitrogen, there is little probability that soybeans contribute anything toward building up permanently the nitrogen content of soils," Snider declared.

Most U.S. surplus food resold to processors

Set crop goals for next year

The War Food Administration is expected to ask farmers to continue "all-out" food production again in 1945. Military demands are expected to continue at high levels. Some food will be needed for relief feeding, and civilians will be able to pay for large supplies if available. The 1945 food and fiber crop goals are expected to call for 363 million acres, or four million acres more than the acreage planted this year. It is doubtful that there will be any cut recommended in corn acreage in spite of the fact that hog numbers have been greatly reduced. Wheat acreage has already been announced at two million acres above 1944. Probably oats and barley acreage goals will remain about the same. No substantial change is expected for soybean and peanut acreages. However, the government will ask farmers to greatly increase their acreages of sugar beets and flax. Farmers have been asked to cut laying flocks by 15 percent. The relatively high level of support prices has induced heavy production of eggs, and it may be necessary to reduce flocks more than 15 percent. An increase of one million head in cattle slaughter is asked for 1945. Hog goals have not been decided.

Goes to consumer through usual trade channels

What happens to Government-owned food not needed by the armed forces and other agencies for which the War Food Administration buys food? Lee Marshall, Director of Distribution says that the greater part of the food offered for sale is going back to processors. In turn, the processors sell the food to wholesalers and other trade groups.

Mr. Marshall points out that between May 1 and October 1, 1944, approximately 92 percent of all offerings of canned vegetables were bought by processors, with wholesalers buying 5 percent and chain stores buying 3 percent from WFA. In dried fruits, processors purchased 73 percent of the WFA offerings. Industrial users got 25 percent and 2 percent went to jobbers.

Figures on canned vegetable sales between May 1 and October 1, 1944, have been worked out by WFA; Canned Corn, 542,000 cases, all sold to original or competitive processors, with 15,770 sold to a cannery owned by a chain store organization; canned peas, 177,000 cases all sold to original or competitive processors, with none sold to chain store organizations, canned sauerkraut, of 89,010 cases sold, original vendors got 45,904 cases, wholesalers 35,000, and chain stores 8,100; canned pumpkin, of 120,162 sold, processors got 76,700, wholesalers 28,063, and chain stores 15,399 cases. Other canned vegetables show similar high proportion of sales to processors and low proportions to wholesalers and chains.

During the five-month period, sales of Government-owned food totaled approximately 22 million dollars, with eggs bought to support producer prices accounting for more than half of this sum.

One pound fat can 'shoot down' Jap warplane

From your own kitchen you can "shoot down" a Jap Zero, and save a fighter's life, for a single pound of waste fats will provide enough glycerine to fire four 37-mm. antiaircraft shells.

Those "not-enough-to-bother-about" amounts of grease, when saved to make a single pound, also will provide enough glycerine to manufacture 1.3 pounds of gunpowder, make half a pound of dynamite for demolition work or fabricate three gas mask bags from cellophane.

Pour your waste fat into murderous gunfire against the Japs instead of down the drain. Your contributions are needed now as never before, according to the War Food Administration.

About one-tenth of the United States' total production of all inedible animal fats has been collected through the fat salvage campaign during the past 12 months. Yet Americans are still wasting twice as much inedible fat as they are turning in to their butchers for red points.

Since the total U. S. supply of edible and inedible fats and oils is expected to shrink by about 700,000,000 pounds in the next 12-month period, such waste must be stopped.

Treat now for mites and lice on farm flock

Sodium fluoride provides the most efficient and economical means for the control of chicken lice at this season of the year, according to H. B. Petty, associate in entomology extension, University of Illinois college of Agriculture and State Natural History Survey.

When the sodium fluoride is dusted over the chickens so that the body and feathers are well covered, the lice can be effectively controlled. The entomologist recommends that it should not be packed on the birds but evenly dusted into the feathers. In most instances a second treatment will not be necessary.

Petty reports that the cost will be less than one cent per bird treated, but considerable work is involved since each chicken must be handled individually.

Many flock owners use 40 per cent nicotine sulphate on the roosts. This material vaporizes and the nicotine fumes kill the lice. But with cold temperatures during the late fall and winter months, vaporization is reduced and control is less effective.

Mites on chickens are a nuisance, and to control them a thorough cleansing of the house and all loose equipment is necessary. All surfaces should be sprayed with carbolineum or crude petroleum, and the birds should be kept out of the pens for a few days following treatment.

"Control of Chicken Lice and Mites," Farmers' Bulletin 801, is available upon request to the State Natural History Survey, Urbana, Illinois.

Farmers to meet

The Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers Association, Local No: 11, Arlington Heights, will hold their annual meeting Tuesday, December 5, at 8 p. m. at the home of Henry Metz, 626 N. Chestnut ave., Arlington Heights. Every member is urged to attend.

Caulk Houses

The government is emphasizing that the ordinary American home can save from 10 per cent to 40 per cent of its fuel by cutting off heat loss through the roof and ceiling, the walls, around and through windows and doors and by increasing the efficiency of the heating plant. One important and easy step in stopping heat leaks is the filling of cracks and other small openings around doors and windows and elsewhere in a structure with modern caulking compounds, which can be purchased in various forms of containers, at relatively small cost, from paint stores or paint departments.

Farm families spend less, save more in war

Income doubles, savings up

A study of the wartime pattern of saving and spending of 340 Illinois farm families who keep home account books in cooperation with the extension service of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture indicates that even though the families' incomes were double in 1943, they bought less and saved more than in 1941.

This study reveals that the farm families saved two and one-half times as much in 1943 as in 1941, and instead of engaging in any reckless spending spree, they actually cut their level of living.

Although the amount spent for farm living was 14 per cent more than the amount spent in 1941, the money really bought less because prices increased 29 per cent during that period.

The report, which was prepared by Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman and Miss Irene Crouch, University home account specialists, reveals that the families spent on the average 56 percent more on housing repairs in 1943 than in 1941, 75 per cent more on church and welfare, 44 percent more for medical care, 50 percent less on transportation, 17 percent less on equipment and furnishings and 14 percent more on total family expenditures.

If the pattern of spending is interpreted on the basis of a constant purchasing power of the 1910-14 dollar in order to rule out the increased prices, prewar and wartime expenditures for food, clothing, recreation and education remained the same in the total amount, for the families spent just enough more to cover increased prices of items bought.

An average of 15 percent of the savings went into war bonds, 15 per cent into new investments and 20 per cent toward debt retirement. An average of three percent was put into life insurance premiums.

Between the families who had an average income of $500-$900 a year and those with $5000 and over, there was only five percent difference in the amount of the money value of living of farm-furnished food, fuel and use value of the farm dwelling. In the lowest income level this amount was 58 percent, in the highest 53 per cent.

Seed samples must be mailed for testing by Jan. 1

W. A. Hinz, member of Cook County AAA Committee, reminded farmers today that seed not sold to a dealer must be submitted to the State Seed Testing Laboratory at Springfield before January 1, 1945, if it is to be eligible for poundage payment under the 1944 Agricultural Conservation Program.

The seed sample should be sent postage pre-paid to the State Seed Testing Laboratories, 603 Armory Building, Springfield, Illinois. The sender's name and return address should be printed on the outside of the package.

"Red clover, alsike and alfalfa seeds, grown in 1944, are eligible for such payments," Mr. Hinz said.

Paul G. Hoffman to address IAA annual meeting

Paul G. Hoffman, chairman of the Committee for Economics Development, will be one of the main speakers at the 30th annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association and associated companies November 27 to December 1 at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, according to an announcement made by IAA officials.

Hoffman, who is president of the Studebaker Corporation, will give his address at the Thursday evening session of the IAA convention, November 30. His subject will be "Business Planning for Postwar Prosperity". Gov. Dwight H. Green will bring greetings to the convention at the Thursday night session.

Speaking at the Friday sessions December 1, will be Dean H. P. Rusk of the U. of I. College of Agriculture; Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and R. B. Corbett, AFBF secretary.

President Earl S. Smith of the IAA will give his annual address at the Thursday morning session, November 30.

Group conferences scheduled for the afternoon of November 30, include organization and information, public relations, schools, soil improvement, and marketing. Among topics scheduled for discussion at the public relations conference are: state postwar planning, veterinarian college at the U. of I., Gateway amendment of state constitution, and postwar agricultural problems.

Final report of the IAA schools committee will be submitted for discussion at the schools conference. Other topics scheduled for consideration at this conference are: revision of state aid to schools, transportation of pupils, and county school committees and surveys.

Soybeans make heavy drain on soil fertility

As a result of a five-year test on an experimental field near Joliet, it has been found that a 25-bushel-an-acre soybean yield removed from the soil about 5.5 pounds of phosphorus and 30 pounds of potassium, according to H. J. Snider, assistant chief, soil experiment fields, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. At present prices for fertilizers, it would cost $2.70, or approximately 10 cents a bushel of beans, to replace in the soil this amount of these two elements.

In this test the soybean crop on an acre contained 135 pounds of nitrogen, which represented the total amount in the entire crop, including the roots, tops and beans. The beans alone—25 bushels—contained approximately 100 lbs. of the total 135 pounds of nitrogen in the crop.

"For the most part, the beans are sold from the farm, and since they contain such a large proportion of the total nitrogen, there is little probability that soybeans contribute anything toward building up permanently the nitrogen content of soils," Snider declared.

Most U.S. surplus food resold to processors

Goes to consumer through usual trade channels

What happens to Government-owned food not needed by the armed forces and other agencies for which the War Food Administration buys food? Lee Marshall, Director of Distribution says that the greater part of the food offered for sale is going back to processors. In turn, the processors sell the food to wholesalers and other trade groups.

Mr. Marshall points out that between May 1 and October 1, 1944, approximately 92 percent of all offerings of canned vegetables were bought by processors, with wholesalers buying 5 percent and chain stores buying 3 percent from WFA. In dried fruits, processors purchased 73 percent of the WFA offerings. Industrial users got 25 percent and 2 percent went to jobbers.

Figures on canned vegetable sales between May 1 and October 1, 1944, have been worked out by WFA; Canned Corn, 542,000 cases, all sold to original or competitive processors, with 15,770 sold to a cannery owned by a chain store organization; canned peas, 177,000 cases all sold to original or competitive processors, with none sold to chain store organizations, canned sauerkraut, of 89,010 cases sold, original vendors got 45,904 cases, wholesalers 35,000, and chain stores 8,100; canned pumpkin, of 120,162 sold, processors got 76,700, wholesalers 28,063, and chain stores 15,399 cases. Other canned vegetables show similar high proportion of sales to processors and low proportions to wholesalers and chains.

During the five-month period, sales of Government-owned 1000 totaled approximately 22 million dollars, with eggs bought to support producer prices accounting for more than half of this sum.

Set crop goals for next year

The War Food Administration is expected to ask farmers to continue "all-out" food production again in 1945. Military demands are expected to continue at high levels. Some food will be needed for relief feeding, and civilians will be able to pay for large supplies if available. The 1945 food and fiber crop goals are expected to call for 363 million acres, or four million acres more than the acreage planted this year. It is doubtful that there will be any cut recommended in corn acreage in spite of the fact that hog numbers have been greatly reduced. Wheat acreage has already been announced at two million acres above 1944. Probably oats and barley acreage goals will remain about the same. No substantial change is expected for soybean and peanut acreages. However, the government will ask farmers to greatly increase their acreages of sugar beets and flax. Farmers have been asked to cut laying flocks by 15 percent. The relatively high level of support prices has induced heavy production of eggs, and it may be necessary to reduce flocks more than 15 percent. An increase of one million head in cattle slaughter is asked for 1945. Hog goals have not been decided.

One pound fat can 'shoot down' Jap warplane

From your own kitchen you can "shoot down" a Jap Zero, and save a fighter's life, for a single pound of waste fats will provide enough glycerine to fire four 37-mm. antiaircraft shells.

Those "not-enough-to-bother-about" amounts of grease, when saved to make a single pound, also will provide enough glycerine to manufacture 1.3 pounds of gunpowder, make half a pound of dynamite for demolition work or fabricate three gas mask bags from cellophane.

Pour your waste fat into murderous gunfire against the Japs instead of down the drain. Your contributions are needed now as never before, according to the War Food Administration.

About one-tenth of the United States' total production of all inedible animal fats has been collected through the fat salvage campaign during the past 12 months. Yet Americans are still wasting twice as much inedible fat as they are turning in to their butchers for red points.

Since the total U. S. supply of edible and inedible fats and oils is expected to shrink by about 700,000,000 pounds in the next 12-month period, such waste must be stopped.

Treat now for mites and lice on farm flock

Sodium fluoride provides the most efficient and economical means for the control of chicken lice at this season of the year, according to H. B. Petty, associate in entomology extension, University of Illinois college of Agriculture and State Natural History Survey.

When the sodium fluoride is dusted over the chickens so that the body and feathers are well covered, the lice can be effectively controlled. The entomologist recommends that it should not be packed on the birds but evenly dusted into the feathers. In most instances a second treatment will not be necessary.

Petty reports that the cost will be less than one cent per bird treated, but considerable work is involved since each chicken must be handled individually.

Many flock owners use 40 per cent nicotine sulphate on the roosts. This material vaporizes and the nicotine fumes kill the lice. But with cold temperatures during the late fall and winter months, vaporization is reduced and control is less effective.

Mites on chickens are a nuisance, and to control them a thorough cleansing of the house and all loose equipment is necessary. All surfaces should be sprayed with carbolineum or crude petroleum, and the birds should be kept out of the pens for a few days following treatment.

"Control of Chicken Lice and Mites," Farmers' Bulletin 801, is available upon request to the State Natural History Survey, Urbana, Illinois.

The Cook County Truck Gardeners and Farmers Association, Local No: 11, Arlington Heights, will hold their annual meeting Tuesday, December 5, at 8 p. m. at the home of Henry Metz, 626 N. Chestnut ave., Arlington Heights. Every member is urged to attend.

Caulk Houses

The government is emphasizing that the ordinary American home can save from 10 per cent to 40 per cent of its fuel by cutting off heat loss through the roof and ceiling, the walls, around and through windows and doors and by increasing the efficiency of the heating plant. One important and easy step in stopping heat leaks is the filling of cracks and other small openings around doors and windows and elsewhere in a structure with modern caulking compounds, which can be purchased in various forms of containers, at relatively small cost, from paint stores or paint departments.

We urge our customers to order their fertilizer at once. Early orders means that your fertilizer will be ready when you want it. All numbers are still available.
We were asked the other day: "How can you sell feed so cheap?" We are paying no commissions to salesmen. We haul it out from Chicago on return trips, cutting transportation cost. Our total volume in hay and grain cuts overhead cost on feed.

Preserves Crispness

A saucer placed upside down in a salad bowl will keep the greens from getting saturated with dressing and becoming soggy. The excess dressing will accumulate under the saucer and will not affect the crispness of the salad, even if it stands for some time.

Coat Mars

The enormous size of modern fighting aircraft is emphasized by a computation that 453 gallons of protective coatings are required to insulate a single mighty Mars against the salt air and salt water which are prime causes of corrosion in naval aircraft, which have to operate under exceptionally severe climatic conditions and often with long intervals between suitable facilities for refinishing. Coatings on such aircraft have to be as durable as the skill of expert paint, varnish and lacquer chemists can make them. They actually form part of the armor of the navy's great sky fleets.

WAVES perform vital Navy jobs. Without them, manpower demands of the armed forces would be much more severe.

Preserves Crispness

A saucer placed upside down in a salad bowl will keep the greens from getting saturated with dressing and becoming soggy. The excess dressing will accumulate under the saucer and will not affect the crispness of the salad, even if it stands for some time.

Coat Mars

The enormous size of modern fighting aircraft is emphasized by a computation that 453 gallons of protective coatings are required to insulate a single mighty Mars against the salt air and salt water which are prime causes of corrosion in naval aircraft, which have to operate under exceptionally severe climatic conditions and often with long intervals between suitable facilities for refinishing. Coatings on such aircraft have to be as durable as the skill of expert paint, varnish and lacquer chemists can make them. They actually form part of the armor of the navy's great sky fleets.

WAVES perform vital Navy jobs. Without them, manpower demands of the armed forces would be much more severe.

Write With Uncle Sam, c-o this paper, Arlington Heights, Ill.

No. Carolina

Home for four days last week was Heinz Rotzoll of Arlington Heights. Heinz has been stationed at Eagle Mt. Lake, Texas, for the past six months after a tour of duty with the Marines in the Pacific, including 5 major engagements.

Rotzoll arrived home Wednesday evening, and left Sunday to report to New Bern, North Carolina, where he expects to be stationed for some time His address is M-Sgt. H. H. Rotzoll, VMBF-931, MAG-93, 9th MAW, Oak Grove, New Bern, N. C.

Luxemburg

Now in Luxemburg is Capt. Otto Masny of Arlington Heights. He was formerly in Belgium after landing in France D-Day, and crossing France.

Otto recently sent home as German souvenirs a parachute, canteen and officer's dagger. The latter is a beautiful sharp-tipped 15 inch sword with swastika emblazoned on the handle.

His address is Capt. Otto Masny, 0-1283639, APO 655, % PM, New York, N. Y.

So. Pacific

From the South Pacific comes word of Charles Engel of Forest River.

"I'm looking forward to another very bleak Christmas in the Southwest Pacific, the fourth in a row

away from home, family and friends. I haven't changed much since I was last home, except the hair at the temples is getting a little grayer. I don't know whether its from worry about home or just old age creeping up on me. I know it isn't fear for there isn't anything out here but Japs and they are nothing to be afraid of. I'll close with best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

His address is CCM Charles Engel, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

Bougainville

From Bougainvill,e we believe, comes a letter from Fred March of Wood Dale. Fred and a buddy of his, G. W. Holberg of Park Ridge, wrote the joint letter.

"The other day we ran across a section of the DuPage County Register and certainly was glad to read the news about the folks at home and the boys in the service. The papers are few and far between so you can imagine how glad we are to get one. Even though it was the September 22 issue it was still new to us.

"We ran across an article about John Tkach, S1c, who had been transferred to the Wood Dale Airport. Don't recall any such airport when we were home but however it must be new. Where is it located? I guess a lot of things can change in three years.

"After reading on about the news of the servicemen there was one letter, written by Bob Briggs of Arlington Heights that aroused most of our attention. We take it that our friend Briggs doesn't have much admiration for the so-called 'dogfaces' and 'leathernecks'. We're sorry that he feels the way he does but we think we're doing just as good a job as he is. Apparently he thinks that after he breaks out the enemy shore installations all we have to do is go in and take over. We only wish that that was all.

"His job is only part of what has to be done. The remainder is left up to us, which we think is the toughest. There may be a lot of souvenirs, true, but we haven't got time to pick them up and besides they're too heavy to carry around.

"However, there are some boys who pick up the souvenirs and trade them off for the beer and whiskey which the navy has a monopoly on. We don't want the souvenirs they fought so hard for, all we want are our metal dog-tags to take home. After all, he's a pretty lucky boy to hit a port with 'wine, women and song' after a short nine months of work. We've been on these islands for 2½ years and have only seen two white women, and they were with a USO show. Pretty good average, don't you think?

"We've said enough now but in closing we'd like to say that there isn't a boy in our outfit that wouldn't glady trade places with him. We hope that we will see Park Ridge and Wood Dale soon."

In checking our records we find the part of Bob Briggs' letter that appears controversial is, in essence, "we go in and blast those shore installations, then the dog faces and leathernecks land and take over. When we get a chance for liberty ashore we look for souvenirs but must purchase them from some dog face or gyrene pawn ship."

Seaman Briggs did not say anything about the dog faces or leathernecks not doing their part. But we welcome any and all letters from the servicemen, no matter what the controversy, as With Uncle Sam belongs to those boys, and not to "us stinkin' civilians."

Fred's address is Sgt. Fred W. March, 36306906, APO 37, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

"WE JUST DON'T WANT ANYTHING TO HAPPEN TO YOU WHILE YOU'RE HOME ON FURLOUGH!"

Serves on desroyer at Saipan, Guam, Manila

EM3c Don Field now home on 27 days leave

Now home after 7 months in the Pacific aboard one of Uncle Sam's newest destroyers is Donald Field of Palatine. Donald went overseas in March of this year, and has just returned.

"Our trip was sort of quiet with little or no naval opposition," reported Don. "It seems the Japs were continually afraid to venture near our own fleet. Of course, our destroyer contacted subs and sustained air raids, but we never did see a single Jap surface vessel in the entire 7 month period.

"Our ship was commissioned December 30, 1943. We went aboard in February of this year, taking our initial shake-down cruise off California. It was in March when we left the States and headed for Hawaii. We engaged in two months of maneuvers and practicing for the Saipan invasion while at Hawaii. Of course, we didn't know it was to be Saipan at the time.

Pickup supplies

"The end of May we were on our way, heading first for the Marshalls. That group of islands has been made quite a naval base, and we took on plenty of supplies.

"Saipan was the next stop. Our job was patrol and bombardment work against the Japs. First job was to knock out many of the enemy installations and pill boxes on Saipan. The battlewagons laid down a terrific barrage, accompanied by all other ships.

"After men had been landed we aimed our fire by radio direction. Whenever the men ashore encountered some obstacle, they would radio back its position. Our guns would blaze a few rounds and the men ashore would move up. Such a battle is a magnificent example of air, sea and ground forces.

No casualties

"After spending some time at Saipan, including Eniwetok, we moved on to Tinian. Bombardment was again in order. We were lucky to never suffer any casualties on these missions, but we did have some close ones. At one time, while dropping depth charges close to shore, Jap snipers took pot shots at us and many of them came uncomfortably close. It's no fun hearing that 'ping' as a bullet whizzes by.

"Back to the Marshalls for our ship for more supplies and mail, and then on to Guam for the invasion there. Our job at Guam was patrol duty some distance from shore. It was up to us to see that no Jap subs got through to the larger ships. One thing I learned while in destroyer service, a 'tin can' is much more expendable than a carrier, cruiser, or battleship. It is an unwritten law that if we see a torpedo heading for a larger type ship, we are to put ourselves in the way, rather than have it hit the carrier. Of course, warnings can be flashed, but the tin fish are sometimes noticed too late.

Go to Philippines

"Next trip on the docket was the Philippines. We had gone back to the Marshalls, and then to the Admiralty Islands before heading for the Philippines. We bombarded the islands about September 10, opening the pre-invasion bombardment that was necessary before the actual invasion a month later. Manila was included in these raids, and we also spent some time off Pelau.

"After that trip our ship headed back to Saipan, and I was given the chance to come home to attend school. We arrived in Bremerton, Washington, the end of October, sailed down to Frisco, and I then came home.

"Biggest surprise I received while overseas was meeting Ray Zyc of Palatine. I was eating chow on deck of our ship when I happened to look down and spotted someone that looked familiar. I ran down and sure enough there was Ray. I think I recognized him more than he did me. But it was swell to see someone from home. We came back to the States together."

Don entered service in November of 1942. He took boot training at Great Lakes, and then went to Electricians Mate school at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis in December. Don graduated from that school the following April, and then headed for the west coast. He shipped out the following March.

EM3c Field arrived home Saturday, November 11. He is scheduled to leave again December 11, this time heading for an advanced electricians school in Virginia.

The Field family is planning a royal Thanksgiving this year, with Don home and the two other Fields in service, Burgess and Peaches, also expected home. Burgess has been touring the country on business, while Sgt. Peaches has been stationed at Colorado Srprings, Colorado.

So. Carolina

From Columbia, South Carolina, comes word of Bill Jensen of Palatine.

"This is to notify you of another change in address for me. I expect this will be my last change for several months—at least I hope so!"

His address is Major Wm. A. Jensen, Sqdn. "5", 333 AAFBU, CCTS, Morris Field, Charlotte, North Carolina.

France

Expected home this week from France is Staff Sergeant Leo Derocher of Arlington Heights. He is a brother of Mrs. Frank Bittner, 519 N. Pine ave., Arlington Heights.

Philippines

Elroy F. Thompson, SSMT2c of Arlington Heights, formerly employed by Park Lane Laundry, and now some where in the South Pacific, is on an amphibious ship. He is a veteran of six invasions, the last of which was Leyte. His ship was in the first wave to enter the channels of the Philippines. General MacArthur was on the cruiser directly across from their ship on the way in.

He said of all the invasions, Leyte was the most "nerve-wrecking". The channels were sown with Japanese mines, and there were a number of busy Jap planes in the air. "A bomb from a Jap plane, with your ship as its target, surely looks as big an an elephant."

As a result of the last four major invasions, Elroy was recommended for the Bronze Star Medal. The official citation reads as follows:

"For distinguishing himself by meritorious achievement as a member of the crew of a United States ship during four amphibious assaults against enemy held territories in the Central, South and Southwest Pacific Areas. Assigned a station to assist in the discharge of troop vehicles and equipment, he skillfully performed his duties. His unflagging energy, devotion to duty, and inspiring conduct set an example to all members of the crew. His conduct throughout distinguishes him among those performing duties of the same character."

His present address is Elroy F. Thompson SSMT2c, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

From Leyte Island in the Philippines comes word of Roy Prince of Arlington Heights. Roy is now with the seventh division fighting on Leyte Island. Roy was wounded on Attu some time back, was sent to Kiska, then to Hawaii, participated in the Marshalls invasion, and is now in the Philippines.

His address is Pfc. Roy Prince, 36049592, APO 7, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Pelelieu

A former football and track star at Arlington Heights high school, Staff Sergeant Louis S. Brodnan, is a member of the "Death Dealers" fighter squadron, of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing.

The 22-year-old Marine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Brodnan, of 128 S. Chestnut st., Arlington Heights, landed on this island several days after D-day on September 15, and on several occasions in the early days of fighting he carried on his duties through heavy Jap mortar and sniper fire.

Staff Sergeant Brodnan, who enlisted on September 22, 1942, played guard on the high school football team, and threw the discus and shotput on the track team. He compared some of his plunges into the foxholes on this island with the blocks he tossed at the enemy on the gridiron.

Before enlisting he was employed by Sadecky Grocery, Arlington Heights.

Great Lakes

Among those graduating from an intensive course of Basic Engineering training at recent Service Schools exercises at Great Lakes were Ralph John Bartels, Palatine and Richard Schaefer of Arlington Heights.

These Bluejackets were selected for their specialized training on the basis of their recruit training aptitude test scores. Graduates from the twenty specialized courses taught here at the Service Schools are sent to sea, to shore stations, or to advanced schools for further duty.

With Uncle Sam

Kansas

Now at Salina, Kansas, is Wilfred Ladd of Itasca.

"I am writing to inform you of a change in address so I will continue to receive the Register while at my new base.

"Our crew was sent up here to pursue a course in photo reconnaissance work. So far it has proved to be quite interesting. In this photo work, we go on a greater variety of training missions than we did while attached to a bomber group in Clovis, N. Nex.

"We've flown over Chicago on different missions and the city looks very nice from the air, especially at night. I had the good fortune to land there on one occasion and had the opportunity to spend a little time at home.

"I shall be looking forward to the next edition of the paper, and hope it won't have to be routed through New Mexico to reach me."

Africa

Now home on leave after serving at a navy shore station at Casablanca since the invasion of Africa in November, 1942, is Harold Kogler of Mt. Prospect. Harold is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kirby. He reports back to duty December 19.

Now in Luxemburg is Capt. Otto Masny of Arlington Heights. He was formerly in Belgium after landing in France D-Day, and crossing France.

Otto recently sent home as German souvenirs a parachute, canteen and officer's dagger. The latter is a beautiful sharp-tipped 15 inch sword with swastika emblazoned on the handle.

His address is Capt. Otto Masny, 0-1283639, APO 655, % PM, New York, N. Y.

So. Pacific

From the South Pacific comes word of Charles Engel of Forest River.

"I'm looking forward to another very bleak Christmas in the Southwest Pacific, the fourth in a row

away from home, family and friends. I haven't changed much since I was last home, except the hair at the temples is getting a little grayer. I don't know whether its from worry about home or just old age creeping up on me. I know it isn't fear for there isn't anything out here but Japs and they are nothing to be afraid of. I'll close with best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

His address is CCM Charles Engel, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

Bougainville

From Bougainvill,e we believe, comes a letter from Fred March of Wood Dale. Fred and a buddy of his, G. W. Holberg of Park Ridge, wrote the joint letter.

"The other day we ran across a section of the DuPage County Register and certainly was glad to read the news about the folks at home and the boys in the service. The papers are few and far between so you can imagine how glad we are to get one. Even though it was the September 22 issue it was still new to us.

"We ran across an article about John Tkach, S1c, who had been transferred to the Wood Dale Airport. Don't recall any such airport when we were home but however it must be new. Where is it located? I guess a lot of things can change in three years.

"After reading on about the news of the servicemen there was one letter, written by Bob Briggs of Arlington Heights that aroused most of our attention. We take it that our friend Briggs doesn't have much admiration for the so-called 'dogfaces' and 'leathernecks'. We're sorry that he feels the way he does but we think we're doing just as good a job as he is. Apparently he thinks that after he breaks out the enemy shore installations all we have to do is go in and take over. We only wish that that was all.

"His job is only part of what has to be done. The remainder is left up to us, which we think is the toughest. There may be a lot of souvenirs, true, but we haven't got time to pick them up and besides they're too heavy to carry around.

"However, there are some boys who pick up the souvenirs and trade them off for the beer and whiskey which the navy has a monopoly on. We don't want the souvenirs they fought so hard for, all we want are our metal dog-tags to take home. After all, he's a pretty lucky boy to hit a port with 'wine, women and song' after a short nine months of work. We've been on these islands for 2½ years and have only seen two white women, and they were with a USO show. Pretty good average, don't you think?

"We've said enough now but in closing we'd like to say that there isn't a boy in our outfit that wouldn't glady trade places with him. We hope that we will see Park Ridge and Wood Dale soon."

In checking our records we find the part of Bob Briggs' letter that appears controversial is, in essence, "we go in and blast those shore installations, then the dog faces and leathernecks land and take over. When we get a chance for liberty ashore we look for souvenirs but must purchase them from some dog face or gyrene pawn ship."

Seaman Briggs did not say anything about the dog faces or leathernecks not doing their part. But we welcome any and all letters from the servicemen, no matter what the controversy, as With Uncle Sam belongs to those boys, and not to "us stinkin' civilians."

Fred's address is Sgt. Fred W. March, 36306906, APO 37, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

EM3c Don Field now home on 27 days leave

Now home after 7 months in the Pacific aboard one of Uncle Sam's newest destroyers is Donald Field of Palatine. Donald went overseas in March of this year, and has just returned.

"Our trip was sort of quiet with little or no naval opposition," reported Don. "It seems the Japs were continually afraid to venture near our own fleet. Of course, our destroyer contacted subs and sustained air raids, but we never did see a single Jap surface vessel in the entire 7 month period.

"Our ship was commissioned December 30, 1943. We went aboard in February of this year, taking our initial shake-down cruise off California. It was in March when we left the States and headed for Hawaii. We engaged in two months of maneuvers and practicing for the Saipan invasion while at Hawaii. Of course, we didn't know it was to be Saipan at the time.

Pickup supplies

"The end of May we were on our way, heading first for the Marshalls. That group of islands has been made quite a naval base, and we took on plenty of supplies.

"Saipan was the next stop. Our job was patrol and bombardment work against the Japs. First job was to knock out many of the enemy installations and pill boxes on Saipan. The battlewagons laid down a terrific barrage, accompanied by all other ships.

"After men had been landed we aimed our fire by radio direction. Whenever the men ashore encountered some obstacle, they would radio back its position. Our guns would blaze a few rounds and the men ashore would move up. Such a battle is a magnificent example of air, sea and ground forces.

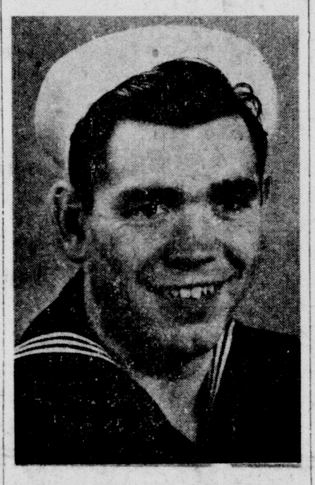

No casualties

"After spending some time at Saipan, including Eniwetok, we moved on to Tinian. Bombardment was again in order. We were lucky to never suffer any casualties on these missions, but we did have some close ones. At one time, while dropping depth charges close to shore, Jap snipers took pot shots at us and many of them came uncomfortably close. It's no fun hearing that 'ping' as a bullet whizzes by.

"Back to the Marshalls for our ship for more supplies and mail, and then on to Guam for the invasion there. Our job at Guam was patrol duty some distance from shore. It was up to us to see that no Jap subs got through to the larger ships. One thing I learned while in destroyer service, a 'tin can' is much more expendable than a carrier, cruiser, or battleship. It is an unwritten law that if we see a torpedo heading for a larger type ship, we are to put ourselves in the way, rather than have it hit the carrier. Of course, warnings can be flashed, but the tin fish are sometimes noticed too late.

Go to Philippines

"Next trip on the docket was the Philippines. We had gone back to the Marshalls, and then to the Admiralty Islands before heading for the Philippines. We bombarded the islands about September 10, opening the pre-invasion bombardment that was necessary before the actual invasion a month later. Manila was included in these raids, and we also spent some time off Pelau.

"After that trip our ship headed back to Saipan, and I was given the chance to come home to attend school. We arrived in Bremerton, Washington, the end of October, sailed down to Frisco, and I then came home.

"Biggest surprise I received while overseas was meeting Ray Zyc of Palatine. I was eating chow on deck of our ship when I happened to look down and spotted someone that looked familiar. I ran down and sure enough there was Ray. I think I recognized him more than he did me. But it was swell to see someone from home. We came back to the States together."

Don entered service in November of 1942. He took boot training at Great Lakes, and then went to Electricians Mate school at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis in December. Don graduated from that school the following April, and then headed for the west coast. He shipped out the following March.

EM3c Field arrived home Saturday, November 11. He is scheduled to leave again December 11, this time heading for an advanced electricians school in Virginia.

The Field family is planning a royal Thanksgiving this year, with Don home and the two other Fields in service, Burgess and Peaches, also expected home. Burgess has been touring the country on business, while Sgt. Peaches has been stationed at Colorado Srprings, Colorado.

Philippines

Elroy F. Thompson, SSMT2c of Arlington Heights, formerly employed by Park Lane Laundry, and now some where in the South Pacific, is on an amphibious ship. He is a veteran of six invasions, the last of which was Leyte. His ship was in the first wave to enter the channels of the Philippines. General MacArthur was on the cruiser directly across from their ship on the way in.

He said of all the invasions, Leyte was the most "nerve-wrecking". The channels were sown with Japanese mines, and there were a number of busy Jap planes in the air. "A bomb from a Jap plane, with your ship as its target, surely looks as big an an elephant."

As a result of the last four major invasions, Elroy was recommended for the Bronze Star Medal. The official citation reads as follows:

"For distinguishing himself by meritorious achievement as a member of the crew of a United States ship during four amphibious assaults against enemy held territories in the Central, South and Southwest Pacific Areas. Assigned a station to assist in the discharge of troop vehicles and equipment, he skillfully performed his duties. His unflagging energy, devotion to duty, and inspiring conduct set an example to all members of the crew. His conduct throughout distinguishes him among those performing duties of the same character."

His present address is Elroy F. Thompson SSMT2c, % FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

From Leyte Island in the Philippines comes word of Roy Prince of Arlington Heights. Roy is now with the seventh division fighting on Leyte Island. Roy was wounded on Attu some time back, was sent to Kiska, then to Hawaii, participated in the Marshalls invasion, and is now in the Philippines.

His address is Pfc. Roy Prince, 36049592, APO 7, % PM, San Francisco, Calif.

Pelelieu

A former football and track star at Arlington Heights high school, Staff Sergeant Louis S. Brodnan, is a member of the "Death Dealers" fighter squadron, of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing.

The 22-year-old Marine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Brodnan, of 128 S. Chestnut st., Arlington Heights, landed on this island several days after D-day on September 15, and on several occasions in the early days of fighting he carried on his duties through heavy Jap mortar and sniper fire.

Staff Sergeant Brodnan, who enlisted on September 22, 1942, played guard on the high school football team, and threw the discus and shotput on the track team. He compared some of his plunges into the foxholes on this island with the blocks he tossed at the enemy on the gridiron.

Before enlisting he was employed by Sadecky Grocery, Arlington Heights.

Great Lakes

Among those graduating from an intensive course of Basic Engineering training at recent Service Schools exercises at Great Lakes were Ralph John Bartels, Palatine and Richard Schaefer of Arlington Heights.

These Bluejackets were selected for their specialized training on the basis of their recruit training aptitude test scores. Graduates from the twenty specialized courses taught here at the Service Schools are sent to sea, to shore stations, or to advanced schools for further duty.

Kansas

Now at Salina, Kansas, is Wilfred Ladd of Itasca.

"I am writing to inform you of a change in address so I will continue to receive the Register while at my new base.

"Our crew was sent up here to pursue a course in photo reconnaissance work. So far it has proved to be quite interesting. In this photo work, we go on a greater variety of training missions than we did while attached to a bomber group in Clovis, N. Nex.

"We've flown over Chicago on different missions and the city looks very nice from the air, especially at night. I had the good fortune to land there on one occasion and had the opportunity to spend a little time at home.

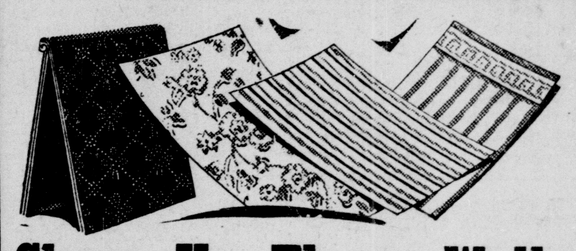

"I shall be looking forward to the next edition of the paper, and hope it won't have to be routed through New Mexico to reach me."
